

Apollo, Soyuz go separate ways

Historic space flight ending

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts stowed treasures Sunday from their historic flight with three Americans, fired a test blast of the Soyuz braking rocket and prepared to land within hours in Russia's Central Asian wheat belt.

The world's first international space mission — launched from pads half a world apart and sealed by a handshake in orbit that joined Russians and Americans into a single crew for two dramatic days — was ending.

Drifting away from Soyuz at 13 miles an hour, the U.S.

astronauts studied the way fish swim in weightlessness and labored over frustrating problems with equipment and scientific experiments aboard America's final Apollo.

Cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov went to sleep early, packed and ready for their 6:50 a.m. EDT (1:50 p.m. Moscow time) dry land touchdown in the prairie steppes near Karaganda.

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton will fly solo in space until Thursday, when they splash down in the Pacific Ocean. They worked more than eight hours past the Russian's bedtime Sunday and were scheduled to be asleep during Soyuz's return to earth, too far from the Russian craft to see it or hear its radios if they were awake.

Officials in Moscow promised the world a live telecast — the first ever permitted in Soviet space history — of the bell-shaped Soyuz descent module drifting toward earth under an orange-and-white parachute and easing to a gentle landing with a rocket blast fired a few feet off the ground.

But they said the TV system breakdown Soyuz suffered on its first day in space dashed hopes of dramatic pictures from inside the spaceship during descent.

An Apollo TV failure forced its crew to discard one of four cameras, switching another from place to place to videotape Stafford exercising and Slayton being measured for changes in his height. Mission control said the bad camera would not be used again.

There were apparently minor troubles with an iced up cooling duct aboard Apollo. Mission control and the astronauts worked without success to fix equipment measuring X-Rays from the Milky Way. And the crew spent hours seeking better ways to study sea waves near Hawaii and land masses around the globe for scientists back home.

Sunday was the sixth anniversary of man's first landing on the moon, the "giant leap for mankind" by Apollo 11 on July 20, 1969, that cemented America's lead in the space race.

The men of Soyuz and Apollo, whose historic flight as a single crew turned rivalry to cooperation, planned no ceremonies to mark the touchdown by Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin in the lunar Sea of Tranquility.

Return scheduled for today

Soviet spacemen head for earth

MOSCOW (UPI) — Cracking jokes and declaring themselves in "perfect health," the two Soviet cosmonauts who held an historic meeting in space with three Americans began preparing Sunday for their return to earth today.

"We have checked the descent system (and) are charging the solar batteries," Engineer Valeri Kubasov said in a live telecast from the Soyuz 19 spacecraft. "The main job is getting ready for tomorrow."

Kubasov and his commander, Alexei A. Leonov, are scheduled to touch down at 6:50 a.m. EDT today some 200 miles north of the Central Asian Baikonur launch site from which they started their journey last Tuesday.

"The cosmonauts are in perfect health and perfect mood," Leonov radioed.

Leonov, however, was ordered by ground controllers to take a mild tranquilizer after data radioed from the craft was interpreted by experts as showing tiredness. Leonov argued that "everything is excellent," but the controllers insisted.

"Well, we are not going to die, are we?" Leonov radioed.

"No, everything is excellent," the controllers said.

The cosmonauts made no reference to violent pitching and yawing which scientists on the ground said took place when the Soviet and American ships redocked experimentally Saturday.

The active role in the original docking Thursday was carried out by Apollo. After separating Saturday, Soyuz flew the active role and it was then the bucking occurred.

Vladimir Syromyatnikov, the chief Soviet engineer concerned with docking, told newsmen in Moscow, "After capture there was a lot of pitch. Soyuz was turning on its axis three degrees a second and straining against the shock absorbers. This strained the mechanism to the utmost."

He said it took 40 seconds to control the pitching and scientists were investigating what caused it.

Syromyatnikov said the docking mechanism "functioned perfectly under unfavorable circumstances." But even if it had torn apart, "I don't think anything very tragic would have happened because both crews were watching every movement and were preparing to withdraw at a second's notice."

Newsmen in Moscow heard the cosmonauts chatting.

No-fault deadline extended

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state has decided to give motorists a 30-day grace period before enforcing provisions of Pennsylvania's new no-fault auto insurance law.

The law went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Saturday. It requires that each automobile in the state be covered by bodily injury and property damage insurance.

Lawrence Beaser, counsel to Gov. Milton J. Shapp, said late Saturday the grace period was granted because the recent state Supreme Court decision declaring the no-fault law constitutional came so close to the effective date of the act.

"The resulting confusion has led the commonwealth departments involved to request law enforcement officers to give both insurance companies and individual citizens 30 days (until midnight, Aug. 18), before strictly enforcing the act's provision," Beaser said.

"Hopefully, this extension will provide the time necessary to enable all concerned to comply with provisions of this law."

The new law provides that a motorist's own insurance company will pay for any injuries suffered by the motorist in an accident, no matter who was at fault.

Persons cited for failure to have the necessary insurance coverage could be fined from $100 to $500.

Contract talks bog down; postal strike undecided

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Day-long negotiations Sunday failed to bridge major differences between Postal Service unions and management over pay and work rules but the top U.S. labor mediator remained hopeful of agreement before the unions' contracts expired at midnight.

Director W.J. Usery of the U.S. Conciliation and Mediation Service said early Sunday evening some major decisions remained to be made if a new contract covering about 600,000 postal workers was to be reached by the midnight deadline.

At a dinner break, James H. Rademacher, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, complained "we've heard nothing all day."

"We're insulted by an offer (from management), which in my personal opinion, would not exceed 3 per cent," he said, compared with a 24 per cent increase originally demanded by the unions.

Rademacher, however, said that his union was not prepared to strike.

Some local unions had threatened to demonstrate or strike if a new contract was not reached but a nationwide walkout, which is forbidden by federal law, was not anticipated.

Usery said "I certainly think that postal workers will continue to work, I hope. It would be a violation of the law if they strike," pickup 4th pgh: Bernard

Bernard Cushman, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules. Cushman said, "I am still attempting and will continue to attempt to reach an agreement."

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer.

Darrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

Usery, special assistant to President Ford for labor relations, said he was seeking a settlement rather than simply an interim agreement that would keep postal workers on the job while the talks continued.

Usery said the talks were among "the toughest I've been in."

Rademacher said "There's a complete understanding that nobody's going to go out tomorrow. Whatever job action we take has got to be national, well-organized."

"We would want to be fair to the public because we would not want to be striking against the public," Rademacher said.

He disclosed the union's first wage position called for an increase of about 24 per cent during a two-year period, which he said would mean comparability with the employees of the private United Parcel Service. He said USP workers make $1.36 an hour more than postal workers on the same jobs.

Rademacher indicated the unions had eased these wage demands when he said "We recognize the pressures. We are willing to make an accommodation."

Ratify new state contract

Social workers end strike

HARRISBURG (UPI) — About 12,000 social workers exchanged picket signs for their desks and typewriters today after ratifying a new contract to end a strike which had disrupted the flow of unemployment checks to jobless Pennsylvanians.

The 10,000-member Pennsylvania Social Service Union voted 1,472-1,096 to accept the pact, while the 2,000 member Pennsylvania Employment Security Employees Association voted 927-218 in favor of ratification. The two unions represent state employees who handle welfare and unemployment compensation operations. The strike began July 1 when the old contract expired.

Agreement on a tentative contract was reached Friday, with union leaders saying they didn't like the pact, but felt it was the best they could obtain. Statewide voting was conducted Saturday.

"I don't think the contract is one that anybody can be proud of," said Edward Farrell, president of the employment security union.

"We fought for pennies while the legislature in the back-ground is trying to get thousands to give themselves a pay increase."

The new contract would raise salaries by 12 per cent over two years, 2.3 per cent now, 2.6 per cent Jan. 1, 1976 and 6 per cent in July, 1976, basically the same settlement other striking public workers got.

But the proposal also includes a six cent an hour payment into the health and welfare fund now and two cents more in July. That will enable the union to set up a dental plan it has been pushing to win for months.

One of the keys to settling the walkout was the ratification of a new contract by the 73,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. The state administration apparently feared a more lucrative settlement with PSSU and PESEA would anger AFSCME.

Pioneer stock was tough

Hannah could have taught NOW

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a weekly series by Bobby Westbrook on some of the historic places in this area, the people who built them and how the years have changed them in a countdown through 1975 toward the Bicentennial year of 1976.)

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
EAST STROUDSBURG — Today's women are not the only ones who have had to assume the role of bread-winner for their families, see their sons off to an unpopular war and their daughters follow their mates to what was, in their day, the ends of the earth.

Hannah Barry Van Vliet could probably give NOW members a few pointers.

Hannah herself came of pioneer stock. Her grandfather, Walter Barry, came from England and married her grandmother, Margaret Connelly of Ireland on March 27, 1758. The date and the marriage has been authenticated by her descendants in the records of Old Swedes Church, Philadelphia.

Hannah's own marriage record is in the Hamilton Square Church. Her parents had moved to the area with a home in the vicinity of the present Pleasant Valley Manor. Born in 1811, Hannah Barry married Charriek Van Vliet in May, 1831, at the age of 20 with Rev. J.B. Grose officiating.

They moved into the small stone house on the hill which Charriek's father, Dirck, had built in what is now East Stroudsburg R.D. 2, and which have been pretty crowded with three generations.

Nevertheless the new bride must have felt she needed some things of her own. In a receipt, dated December 1831, from Eichman and Deshler, signed by G.W. Houser, and carefully itemized, they bought a looking glass, $1.25; tinware, candlestick, churn, frying pan, churn, teaspoons, and other items, totalling $24.06 toward which the young bridegroom paid $20.

She probably needed things all her own with seven children coming along in rapid succession. Charriek pitched in, too. In addition to helping on the farm, he cut and rafted lumber, not only down the Delaware, but also from their own woodlots down the Anasomink, now the Brodhead Creek.

The day the heavens fell
Charriek also collected limestone from the farm and area and converted it into lime in the old kiln, the vestiges of which can still be found on the property on the banks of the Sambo.

He would haul a wagonload of the lime for sale in Easton, starting very early in the morning in order to make it back home the same day. Family legend has it that on one such early morning start, he ran into such a shower of falling stars and meteors that the unearthly light seemed like an early dawn in the winter darkness.

Deciding that if the world was coming to an end, as seemed likely, there was no use going on to Easton, Charriek turned around and came home.

Charriek Van Vliet wasn't the only one who thought the world was coming to an end in that "Tempest of Falling Stars" as it is labeled in the "History of Astronomy in the 19th Century," which also firms up the date: Nov. 12-13, 1833.

HANNAH BARRY VAN VLIET — A reproduction of an old tintype by her great-great-grandson, Harry Leida, shows the character of Hannah Van Vliet which led her descendants to label the old house on the hill in East Stroudsburg R.D. 2 "Grandmother Hannah's House."

The American Journal of Science and Arts adds some descriptive material to the family legend. The peculiar brightness of that night, it says, "bathing everything, in-

Treasure hunters die when ship capsizes

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — A salvage tug involved in the attempted recovery of a $100 million treasure from a sunken 17th century Spanish galleon capsized and sank Sunday, drowning its skipper, his wife and a salvage diver.

The 60-foot converted tugboat "Northwind" rolled on its side at anchor before dawn, as most of those aboard slept, pitching eight crewmen into the Gulf of Mexico and trapping the three below decks, where they drowned.

Crewman Donnie Jonas of Key West said he was trapped for eight minutes in the flooded engine room but found an air pocket and then located a flashlight which he used to find a way out of the foundering boat.

Survivors said a bilge pump apparently failed during the night, filling one side of the Northwind's steel hull with water.

The dead included the skipper, Dirk Fisher, 21, his wife, Angel, 25, and Rick Gage, about 21, a diver from Jamestown, N.Y.

Fisher was the son of Mel Fisher, formerly of Gary, Ind., the president of Treasure Salvors Inc. The salvage company is trying to raise treasure from the galleon "Nuestra Senora de Atocha," which sank in a 1622 hurricane about 12 miles off the Marquesa islands, at the tip of the Florida Keys and 40 miles west of Key West.

"It's a powerful ocean," said the elder Fisher. "It takes people and ships."

Senate waits for Shapp on nominee compromise

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Senate Democratic leaders awaited word Sunday from Gov. Milton J. Shapp on a possible compromise that would permit the chamber to reconsider the nominations of three state officials and Philip Kalodner to be chairman of the Public Utility Commission.

(Related story, page 16)

Last Tuesday, the Senate defeated the nominations of Kalodner, Agriculture Secretary James McHale, Liquor Control Board Chairman Henry Kaplan and Civil Service Commission Chairman Grace Hatch.

Senate rules permit lawmakers to reconsider actions they have taken, but the reconsideration votes, if they occur, must be taken today.

Senate Majority Leader Thomas Nolan, D-Allegheny, said if Shapp agrees to nominate former state Sen. Thomas Lamb, D-Allegheny, to a vacancy on the PUC, the leadership would then agree to reconsider votes on the other three officials.

Shapp was in Washington, but his office told Nolan the governor would be in contact with him after his return Sunday.

Shapp administration officials say Kaplan and Hatch stand the best chance of winning confirmation. The nominees were defeated because the Republicans solidly opposed them.

But the governor has a good record of being able to win support from the Senate Republican caucus when he needs it.

The chances that McHale will win confirmation the second time around are less certain.

McHale was defeated by a bipartisan group of rural legislators who oppose many of the programs the secretary instituted during his first five years in office. Shapp will have trouble changing their minds.

There is no question, however, that the outcome of a second vote on Kalodner's nomination as PUC chairman will be the most interesting.

Kalodner was defeated the first time by a 23-26 vote, primarily because Shapp failed to first nominate Lamb.

Democratic leaders made it clear to the governor that Kalodner would be defeated if Lamb was not nominated.

8 jurors seated for Little trial

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Eight of the 12 jurors who will decide whether Joan Little is guilty of murdering her white jailer have been selected and defense attorneys are optimistic the rest can be chosen this week.

The complicated jury selection process — involving "sociological questioning," an electronic calculator to compute responses from prospective jurors and use of an expert in "body language" of the defense — resumes today.

Also, today, defense attorneys will have the opportunity to inspect evidence against Miss Little, a 21-year-old black woman, including the icepick she used to stab 62-year-old Clarence Alligood on Aug. 27, 1974.

Miss Little admits she stabbed Alligood, whose body was found without pants in a Beaufort County jail cell where Miss Little was held pending appeal of a breaking and entering conviction. But she claims self-defense, saying she had to fight off a rape attempt by the retired farmer and truck driver.

Defense attorney Marvin Miller is reasonably certain that the four extra jurors needed to try the case will be selected this week, but notes that Wake County Superior Court Judge Hamilton C. Hobgood wants four to five alternate jurors as well.

The inspection of evidence today will be at the State Bureau of Investigation laboratory. Also this week, defense experts, on Hobgood's orders, will be allowed to look at the state's evidence at the Beaufort County jail.

21 Greeks face trial for treason

ATHENS (UPI) — Twenty-one former army officers will go on trial for their lives before a military tribunal today on charges of plotting to overthrow Greece's new democratic regime.

The defendants are charged with high treason, which carries severe penalties including a possible death sentence, because the country still was under mobilization at the time of the alleged plot.

The accused include Brig. Gens. Spyridon Eliopoulos, 50, and George Lambousis, 49, a colonel, six lieutenant colonels, nine majors and three captains, all retired.

The alleged leaders, former dictator and chief of military police, Brig. Dimitrios Ioannidis, and retired Col. Dimitrios Papapostolou, will be tried later by a civilian court because they were out of the army when allegedly plotting.

The prosecution said the conspiracy began in December 1974 after Greece's first parliamentary elections in 10 years and a referendum that ended the monarchy.

None of the women, believed to be friends of the rape victim, has been arrested, police said. However, it was reported that three women arrested on an unrelated charge Saturday were thought to have been involved in the attack.

Anne Pohtamo, new Miss Universe

Finnish beauty Miss Universe

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Sleepy from dancing half the night but happy after her selection as Miss Universe 1975, Anne Pohtamo of Finland posed for traditional breakfast-in-bed pictures Sunday morning and joked, "I slept all night with my crown on."

The green-eyed blonde (34-24-33) still seemed dazed by her win over 70 other contestants in the 24th annual international beauty pageant. Her triumph brought her riches — $22,500 in cash awards and numerous other gifts — as well as fame.

Grand jury may enter Hearst case

SCRANTON (UPI) — U.S. Attorney John Cottone said Saturday night that unless the FBI comes up with new leads "within the next month or two" in the Patricia Hearst case, he will ask a federal grand jury to join the investigation in the search for the fugitive newspaper hieres.

Cottone impaneled a grand jury in Harrisburg last March in connection with the whereabouts of the Miss Hearst, along with several members of the Symbionese Liberation Army after evidence indicated they stayed at a farmhouse last fall in northeastern Pennsylvania.

The 18-month term of that grand jury expires next week and Cottone said a new jury will be impaneled Thursday.

He said if the grand jury is called into the Hearst case, it will be an investigatory body and witnesses will be called and put under oath. He however said at the present time "there are no subpoenas issued at all."

He said it was possible that Jay Weiner, 20, of Philadelphia, the Temple University student called to testify before the grand jury in March, would be recalled to testify before the new panel.

OAS may call meeting on Cuba

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Diplomats Sunday were reported near a decision to call a conference here later this month to discuss ending mandatory sanctions against Cuba.

Delegates of the Organization of American States meeting here to update a 1947 defense treaty said it appeared almost certain foreign ministers from member nations would hold a conference in this Central American capital to discuss the issue.

Diplomats earlier had predicted the meeting would probably take place in Trinidad.

Sources said the OAS Council is expected to convene the conference as soon as the revisions are completed of the Inter-American Mutual Assistance Treaty, also known as the Rio Treaty, perhaps as early as next weekend.

At the meeting, the OAS nations will vote on a U.S.-supported resolution that leaves it up to each country to decide on whether to have relations with Cuba. Such an action would have the effect of ending the 1964 diplomatic ban on Cuba.

Hard work way of life for Grandmother Hannah

Well, the world didn't end that November night for Charrick Van Vliet or the countless other North Americans who lived through it. But life went on and in 1834 his father, Dirck, died in the home he had built and where Charrick had been born, and the responsibility of the family descended to Charrick.

For Charrick himself, the world ended in 1844, leaving his widow with seven children, the oldest 12 and the youngest nine months, to raise, and the management of the 196-acre farm.

Work and worry

She lived until 1897, with 53 years to perfect her skills. In addition to the farm, her obituary in the local paper, lists other ways in which she added to the farm income. She did rug-weaving, served as a nurse, including mid-wifery. She also served as janitress for the Beakleyville Baptist Church at the end of the lane, for 27 years, missing only three services in all that time.

It's no wonder that the Van Vliet homestead came to be known as "Grandmother Hannah's house."

But hard work wasn't her biggest headache. Two of her sons served in the Civil War, Warren R. and Milton, and their letters from camp have been carefully preserved by a great-granddaughter, Mrs. Thomas Brietweiser of Anolmink Street, East Stroudsburg.

Warren, who was Mrs. Brietweiser's grandfather, in copy book script writes of being wounded in the process of arresting a deserter, of the food and dysentery in camp, and of the Confederate prisoners they had taken, most of whom were what Warren described as "pretty hard cases."

On the other hand one of the prisoners really touched his heart. "One of the prettiest child I have ever seen" he says of a 16-year-old whose father had been killed at Pittsburgh Landing and whose mother had died shortly after.

"He cried so bitterly that I could not bring myself to leave him until he had cried himself to sleep," he wrote.

Meanwhile his own younger brother, Milton, was in grievous plight in the Tullahoma Prison Camp. Milton's letters, while attempting to reassure his mother about his condition and treatment, also reported erysipulous setting in his wounded leg, and pleaded for a photograph of his mother.

Ill-starved love

The collection of letters also include love letters from his sweetheart, Sue Bouchere of Philadelphia. The last letter from Sue was filled with heartbroken reproach that the family had not informed her of how ill Milton was when he was finally released so that she could have come to see him before he had died and been buried.

If Hannah had any part in that, she must have regretted it later as her own children married and moved away. Mary and Martin moved to Iowa. Her youngest daughter, Lydia Ann, married Morgan Loder and moved to Albion, Mich.

However, her oldest son, John Wesley Van Viet, remained on the farm. It is from John Wesley's granddaughter that we have a first-hand memory of Hannah.

Mary Van Vliet Coffman, now 88, of King Street, East Stroudsburg recalls her great grandmother as "a tall woman who always wore a lace dust cap."

As a very small child she remembers being left with Hannah while the rest of her family went to a funeral in her mother's family. Hannah, whose eyesight was failing, asked the little May to lead her down to the lime kiln so she could hear the funeral procession as it came down Milford Road.

May also remembers Hannah's own funeral. Hannah had gone by train with her little dome-tipped trunk, still in the family, escorted by a grandson to Albion, Mich., to stay with Lydia Ann. It was there she died in 1897 and was brought home for burial.

May, then about nine, was awed by the black casket, her great-grandmother in her black dress and the one white calla lily someone had placed in her hand.

May Coffman's memories of life in the old stone house and the activities which surrounded it are more vivid during the lifetime of her grandparents, the John Wesley Van Vliets, and her own parents and Harry "Bucky" Van Vliets.

These memories can again people the old house on the hill with a bustle of the family truck farm, a family canning enterprise, an "inventing" uncle, and children playing in the crystal clear waters of the Sambo.

What's news

Mother says Teddy won't run

BOSTON — Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, mother of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sees no circumstance which would change her son's decision to stay out of the 1975 presidential race and the family is "very much against" his running for the post, according to the Sunday Herald Advertiser. When asked whether she considered circumstances developing between now and 1976 might persuade her son to alter his position, Mrs. Kennedy replied, "No, he has said he is not running." According to the Boston newspaper which said it was the first time an immediate member of the family had publicly confirmed the senator's irreversible decision. Mrs. Kennedy, who celebrates her 85th birthday Tuesday, said, "The family is very much against" his running.

Grain sale probe on

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department is checking an allegation that one of its investigators was ordered to back off a probe into the type of irregularities that later mushroomed into a major grain inspection scandal. Documents supplied to a Senate agriculture subcommittee say "the allegation, as described, has not been substantiated" by early reviews of a complex series of memos, conferences and decisions involving reports made as early as 1970 by Willard O. Griffin, a now retired special agent in the department's Office of Inspector General. But officials said a probe on what happened to Griffin's investigations is still in progress.

Secret pacts alleged

WASHINGTON — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., charged Sunday that the United States has concluded 29 secret agreements with foreign countries since August, 1972, covering atomic energy, weapons storage and defense. In a letter to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger which he released to the press, Aspin cited the Freedom of Information Act and asked Kissinger to provide copies of each agreement or at least an unclassified summary. Aspin also charged that the secrecy surrounding these agreements violates a provision of the U.N. charter calling for the publication of international agreements of its members. He said such secrecy also seems to violate U.S. laws which similarly require publication, with some exceptions.

Dr. K. has interesting trash

LANTANA, Fla. — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's household trash contained hundreds of Secret Service documents which "would be of vital interest to a potential assassin," the weekly National Enquirer reported Sunday in its July 29 edition. The newspaper sent reporters and photographers to the Kissinger home near Washington to pick up garbage and trash left for collection by garbage crews.

Russians have Suez problems

BOSTON — Egyptian officials have denied Soviet ships their traditional docking and berthing facilities within Egyptian territories during the past two months and no Russian warships have used the Suez Canal since it reopened on June 5, according to the Boston Sunday Globe. "The Egyptian government is turning to the only leverage it has left against the Russians, harassment of its highly desirable naval facilities to the point of implicitly threatening total denial," said one diplomatic source quoted by the newspaper.

Jerusalem explosion not guerrilla action

By United Press International

An explosion ripped through a Jerusalem apartment building Sunday, killing two boys playing on the sidewalk and wounding eight other persons, police and hospital officials said.

Police ruled out Arab guerrilla sabotage as the cause of the blast, which tore out the walls of corner apartments on three floors of the eight-story building. They said the blast was caused by a faulty gas-powered water heater.

One of the children died instantly when struck by flying debris and the other died at Hadassah Hospital. Two more children were listed in serious condition and four more were in good condition. Two women also were hurt, but not seriously.

The explosion came as Israeli officials expressed "cautious optimism" that a new interim peace settlement could be reached with Egypt despite Cairo's threat not to renew the mandate of the U.N. peacekeeping force on the Sinai front.

Israeli national radio said Egyptian troops in the Sinai Desert were unusually active and Israeli forces were on the alert, but a military spokesman said nothing out of the ordinary was going on.

Six women attack alleged rape suspect

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Six women overpowered and slashed a man in what a detective described as "vengeance" for a reported rape.

The man, identified by Police Chief R.H. Palmer as John Dotson, 20, Daytona Beach, was listed in "satisfactory" condition in the intensive care ward of Halifax, Fla., hospital. He was under treatment for cuts and slashes about the face, arms, shoulders and abdomen. He was held under guard by a Volusia County deputy sheriff, charged with one count of sexual battery.

None of the women, believed to be friends of the rape victim, has been arrested, police said. However, it was reported that three women arrested on an unrelated charge Saturday were thought to have been involved in the attack.

Although police declined to discuss any direct link between the 2 p.m. attack on Dotson at his home here Friday and the 12:30 a.m. rape at an apartment in the Cedar Highlands subdivision earlier that day, Police Sgt. Robert Sharpe said Sunday, "I understand there is a connection."

BRODHEADSVILLE — If you'd like to be one of the first Hamilton Township residents to be able to take a peep at the interior of the historic Old Mill in Sciota, plan to attend the restoration council's next meeting at the site at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The meeting is open to the public and will be held right in the Old Mill itself. The council is looking for interested residents who would like to help get the grist mill completely restored to its original condition.

The group now has $500 in donations in its treasury and has the restoration plans for the building completely drawn up. The council is also in the process of having the Old Mill put on the national register in Washington D.C., to preserve it as a permanent historical landmark.

Rumors have been circulating throughout Hamilton Township that the S.S. Kresge Foundation will be funding part of the restoration, but according to Gloria Bonser, chairman of the council, the foundation recently indicated it would not contribute to the project, although earlier indications were that some funds would be made available from the foundation.

If you plan on attending the Tuesday night meeting, see if you have any old historical books on Mills or other history, particularly that of Monroe County, that you could donate for a library that is being compiled on the first floor of the mill.

The West End Fire Company in Brodheadsville has received its annual carnival and it will begin on July 28. If it's anything like those the company used to run years ago, and we're told it will be, you're in for some fun.

In case you haven't noticed already, the West End News Bureau is back in full operation again now that I've returned from vacation. News articles can be phoned in directly to me again at the bureau phone: 992-4153.

New officers of the Historical Farm Association which operates the Quiet Valley Farm Museum are as follows: David Ross, president; John Muncie, vice-president; Ruth Shook, recording secretary; Ann Gonze, corresponding secretary and Joseph Stout, treasurer.

The Chestnuthill Township Supervisors have not passed that burning ordinance as yet, but the word is that the firemen and the supervisors are still working on the legislation.

That annual tug o'war set between the Hamilton United Lutheran Church and the Zion United Church Lutheran of Brodheadsville is set for Saturday, July 26, so don't forget to mark it on your calendar.

A unique County Craft Day will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, July 26 at the Brainerd Center in Snyder'sville for area 4-H Club members. Craft demonstrations will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and will be centered around the bicentennial. Demonstrations will include horse shoeing, wheat grinding, spinning wool, quilting, making wood whistles and much more. Door prizes and the attendance award will be presented at noon. A picnic lunch will be held from noon to 1 p.m. and swimming will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The club with the most members at the craft day will receive a watermelon for lunch.

That trip to deliver Bibles to the Canadian Indians has been postponed for a week, so if you have donations, you can still get them in this week. If you have any used Bibles that can go with the Monroe County donations, call me at 992-4153 for pick-up.

The latest word is that Tom Rue has still not paid that filing fee for his Countryside development in Brodheadsville. The Chestnuthill Township Planning Commission ruled this week that a letter would be sent out requesting payment in 10 days. If Rue doesn't pay his tab by then, the matter will be turned over to Solicitor Lester Brown for collection.

And Richard Graeber, this week submitted plans to the Chestnuthill Township Planning Commission for a 10-bedroom rental unit complex on 3.5 acres of ground near McMichaels. The plans will be reviewed in the next month but no starting date for construction has been set yet.

The Western Pocono Junior Women's Club will hold its regular monthly meeting at 8 p.m. tonight at the Effort Village Inn. Hostesses are Barbara Everett, Nadine Hinton and Peggy Tressler. The group is also making plans to sponsor its annual stand at the West End Fair this year and in addition to the food goodies the members will also be selling handicrafts, notepaper and jewelry.

Environment unit to set boating, cabin rules

HARRISBURG — The Environmental Quality Board has adopted new regulations regarding air emissions from primary zinc smelters and approved for publication to receive comments new State Park boating and cabin regulations and approved designation of State Forest natural and wild areas.

Pa. park swim hours cut

BELTZVILLE — Swimming hours at state parks with beach facilities have been reduced because of a cutback in the state's 1975-76 budget allotment to the parks.

Effective today, beach hours at state parks will be 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily, a reduction of two hours.

Previously, state park beaches were open 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Anthony Lupino Jr., Beltsville State Park superintendent, said the change was ordered in a letter from Dr. Maurice Goddard, State Department of Environmental Resources secretary.

He noted, however, that all other park activities were not affected by the budget cut.

out with the firms involved and actually represent a reduction in the standards applied to sulfur oxide emissions from the zinc roasting operation.

The new State Park proposals revise the boating area regulations to conform with regulations of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission regarding use of personal flotation devices and types of watercraft and conduct which are prohibited on State Park waters.

New regulations on family cabin areas would formalize what has been the practice in the past with several changes. Under the proposal, Pennsylvania residents would be given preference for reserving cabins in the spring and fall seasons. (Currently, state residents are the only ones who can rent cabins in the summer season).

Also, preference for rentals would be given to family groups over non-family units. The new boating and family cabin regulations will be published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin to receive comment and will be considered for adoption by the Board at a later meeting.

The list of 44 Natural Areas and 13 Wild Areas was presented to the Board by the Department of Environmental Resources in April.

The Natural Areas represent a geographic distribution of all major forest types occurring on State Forest land, representatives of early and late successional stages where natural succession can be observed, unique or unusual plant communities and virgin timber stands.

Retired?

Announcing our best Refund Annuity buy in almost 4 decades.

Now you can enjoy a guaranteed monthly income for life at the annual rate of about 11%* of the price you pay for the annuity.

That's The Equitable's latest rate of return for a man 70 years old, who buys a guaranteed fixed-income Refund Annuity. A woman of the same age receives slightly less (about 10%*), because women live longer and income payments are continued for a longer period.

At the important retirement ages (65-75), The Equitable's annuity rates are highly competitive. In fact, our current rates make it worthwhile to consider any type of Equitable fixed-income annuity at any retirement age.

With the Refund Annuity, you can be sure that the total of the annuity payments to you and to your heirs will be at least equal to the purchase price. Or, you can choose an annuity that assures payments for life, with a specified minimum number of payments guaranteed.

*Based on current rates.

There are other plans, and the rates differ according to the plan selected.

In every plan, each payment is made up of both principal and interest, so a substantial portion is not includable in income for Federal tax purposes.

No matter which fixed-income annuity you choose, nothing can ever reduce the income payments guaranteed in your Equitable contract. For details on the kinds of annuities available and the amount of income you can get, send in the coupon.

More you see of China, more you think of America

Editor's note: William E. Giles was a member of a 20-man delegation from the American Society of Newspaper Editors which recently completed a 24-day, 4,350-mile tour of the People's Republic of China. He is an executive of Dow Jones & Co., Inc. This is the first of a six-part series on the trip.

By WILLIAM E. GILES
Dow Jones-Ottaway News Service
PEKING — China is the smile of a friend and the stares of sullen strangers. It's sunlight in the Forbidden City and shadows in one-room houses. It's the jangle of the cities and the splendid solitude of the countryside. It's the drabness of nearly everything, except costumed children dancing in the park.
China is the Great Wall — with initials carved in stone. It's a coal mine in Fushun and a cave in Kweilin. It's a walk in the Humble Administrator's Garden in Soochow, and a boat ride on the Whangpoo River at Shanghai. It's a rainy afternoon in Harbin, and a popsicle under a persimmon tree in Hsienhsiang. It's politics and Peking duck, morality and Mandarin fish. And a little bit of squid egg soup.
China is different, impossible to generalize about. It's a land of more than 800 million — one-fourth of the planet's population. This is a closed, organized society where communications, internal and external, are carefully controlled. It's a place where pride, certainty, and dead seriousness are the marks of true believers, and there's little tolerance of wit, humor or natural spontaneity.

After 24 days in China, a traveler is asked: What do you think of China? Many things. But one of the more interesting phenomena is that the China traveler finds himself thinking a good deal more about America. And feeling pretty good about it.
The China journey begins here in the capital of the People's Republic, after a non-stop, four-hour flight from Tokyo. Greeted at the airport by Chinese friends who visited the U.S. in 1973, we're whisked in a 10-car caravan of Shanghai sedans to the Peking Hotel. There are few other cars on the broad, tree-lined streets, but there are streams of bicycle riders on both sides.
The Peking Hotel on Chang An Avenue has a new wing — 17 stories of opulence, with red carpets and golden columns in the lobby and a banner that reads: "We Have Friends All Over The World." Milling around in the lobby is a group of boys and girls from Tasmania who are here on a singing tour. There's a woman doctor from Wisconsin, a professor from Johns Hopkins University, a trio of French businessmen and four African students.

The rooms are large and airy with huge windows. (The drapes are operated by a small electric motor). On a table is a bowl of pears and apples, a can of tea leaves, a package of filter-tipped Chungwa cigarettes, and a thermos of hot water for tea. Although the single bed is hard, the shower has no curtain, and the new door locks don't work, the room proves to be comfortable and secure.
Limited accommodations are cited as one reason for restricting the number of visitors to the People's Republic. A lack of translators and convenient transportation also is limiting. It seems clear, however, that the People's Republic wants to keep the number of foreign visitors here low and carefully screened. The prospects for casual tourism are not bright.
Such attractions as the Forbidden City, the Summer Palace, the Great Wall, and the Ming tombs lure thousands of sightseers nowadays, but they're almost all Chinese. The interior courtyards of the Forbidden City, once the preserve of emperors alone, now are crowded with Chinese soldiers on leave, young people and workers, some of whom are repairing and cleaning rundown structures.
Foreigners still are objects of large curiosity in Peking. Crowds quickly gather wherever strangers appear in public. Coming out of a restaurant one night, the American group discovered the street jammed by curious, quiet, solemn spectators who obviously had been waiting some time to get a glimpse of the visitors. It's eerie to be the sudden center of such attention.

The Chinese chose to show off two non-tourist attractions in Peking: A modern subway with electric trains that opened in 1969 and runs about 14 miles into the suburbs, and an intricate network of tunnels and underground rooms built as air raid shelters.
The shelters, started in 1969 and still under construction in cities throughout China, are being built by "volunteers" as a way of dispersing people fast, according to the government. The tunnels in the Ta Shi-la Street area, said to be typical, are about four feet wide and five feet high and connect with other tunnels that lead to the suburbs between four and five miles distant.

What do the Chinese fear? An attack from the North, responds Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, referring to the Soviet Union. It is better to be prepared, says Teng; there is more to gain and nothing to lose.

Practical as always, the Chinese say they will use the underground shelters to store grain or set up shops when, and if, they're not needed for air raid protection.

PennDOT cuts spell trouble

As if Pennsylvania's road network wasn't in bad enough repair, Pennsylvania Department of Transportation Secretary Jacob Kassab has ordered further cutbacks in repair and maintenance programs.
This is part of the price we must pay for an austerity budget and no new taxes, not to mention the gasoline price increases that are forcing greater conservation on motorists, like it or not.
When less gasoline is sold, the state gasoline tax revenues drop. For the first six months of 1975, revenue has been fully $22 million less than anticipated when the current budget was drawn up last year. And motor vehicle license fees, which account for a substantial part of PennDOT's income, has dropped $18 million from a predicted $141 million.
So the recession hits the department both ways. The high unemployment rate in the Commonwealth in great part prompted Gov. Milton Shapp to pledge no new taxes this year. And so, coupled with falling tax revenues, $53 million has been cut from the PennDOT budget.
Does this mean we will have to put up with that miserably lumpy bridge over the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad tracks in East Stroudsburg? There are other problems with the project, the state is still battling to get out of its share of repairs, but that just may be the case. Every county in the state has some road or bridge where repairs are deemed vital. How do you choose which will be fixed and which will not when something has to be cut?
To a great extent, politics plays a part, and Monroe County is far from the strongest political unit in the state. The cutback also bodes ill for further work on a relocated Rte. 209 — that part of the project outside the federal enclave, at any rate.
While we recognize that budget cuts had to be made, it seems to us that there must be other areas of government service that could be sacrificed to make room for thorough road repair and maintenance. Roads are vital in this age of private automobiles and trucks and the decline of rapid transit — where it exists at all, that is.
Not only motorists but contractors will be hurt. By cutting back, PennDOT will rent far fewer trucks, bulldozers and other items of machinery from private contractors. So the effect of the cutback will be not only to allow Pennsylvania's highways to deteriorate further, but to deepen the recession among the building trades.
We urge PennDOT and the Shapp administration to reconsider the drastic cutback and find some way — even if it calls for another cent on the gasoline tax, but preferably by making deeper cuts elsewhere in the budget — to keep up the state's roads and highways.

Wallace keeps rolling along

WASHINGTON — Democratic Party regulars are wringing their hands in anguish because they just can't seem to devise a workable strategy to derail George Wallace's steadily chugging "Nomination Express."
Their trouble is that they can't get anyone of their own — men like Jackson or Muskie or Humphrey — to lead any open, direct, fair-argument challenge to Gov. Wallace to try to persuade Democratic voters to turn in another direction.
As a result, many in the Democratic hierarchy are still resorting to feeble, tricky devices which simply build more support for Wallace.
Some have tried to get Southern state legislatures to repeal next year's primaries as one means of cutting down Wallace's delegate potential.
Others, as at the recent national Governors' Conference, slyly suggested that Wallace has a moral duty to assure the convention that he will support the party nominee, whoever he is.
His quick cutting reply was: Why should I do that since other Democrats won't say they will support me if nominated?
Touche.
There is one exception. There is one Democratic presidential aspirant who is on the right track. He is former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, who is prepared to take on Wallace in Wallace's own state and other Southern primaries. He has high standing among many Democrats in the South.
Offer alternative
He is a Southern moderate with humanitarian instincts and he offers a practical alternative to Gov. Wallace. He isn't stepping back from running openly against Wallace, and this is the only constructive and possibly effective way of keeping the nomination from Wallace without splintering the Democratic Party to smithereens.

Certainly tricky maneuvers won't do it. And timidity won't do it. Other than Jimmy Carter, no Southern governors, though they say they are against Wallace, have the political courage to oppose him even in their own state primaries. And when other Democratic regulars slant paper arrows at him, Wallace blows them back with ease.
As the governor remarked at a recent speech in New Orleans: "I'm just sitting her, not straining a bit, and it seems that I'm all the other ones talk about."
That's about it. Wallace just keeps rolling along and the Democratic regulars seem almost hypnotized into immobility by the feeling that what they most fear will come upon them.
I am not saying that Wallace will for certain get the nomination. But the stunned silence of most of the other Democratic candidates means that Wallace may well gather a formidable, even a commanding bloc of delegates before the convention opens.
I feel sure of one thing: The Democratic regulars can't maneuver him out of the nomination without wrecking the party for the 1976 election.

Brides used to be purchased. Part of the price was offset by the money, goods or property that the bride's father gave her to take to her husband.
The French called the collective items "trousseau" (little bundle), the diminutive form of "trusse" (bundle).
"Trousseau" now refers to the clothes the bride takes with her on her honeymoon.

Courts using subpoena against freedom of the press

Jack Anderson
With Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — In the American drama, reporters constantly try to uncover the misdeeds that the authorities cover up. It is not surprising, therefore, that some officials want to muzzle cantankerous reporters.
The big weapon against the press today is the subpoena. It is used to wipe out the reporter's First Amendment right to conceal the identity of his sources.
This is essentially an attack on investigative reporting, which cannot exist without confidential sources. Any reporter who divulges confidences obtained in his professional capacity will lose his sources.
Most of our own confidential informants are dedicated public servants, who become disturbed over mismanagement, misspending and corruption in their agencies.
To whom should they report the wrongdoing? Many come to us because they don't trust the government to investigate itself. They come in confidence because they fear reprisals from superiors who may be implicated in the misconduct.
There is nothing devious about this process. It is precisely what our Founding Fathers intended. It is the reason, indeed, that they established in the First Amendment certain freedoms and immunities for the press.
The reporter's function is to give the people an alternate source of information so they are not dependent only upon official pronouncements; to expose and thus stop a particular bit of public mischief; to set in motion the reforms that will prevent its recurrence.

Only tangentially is the reporter concerned with the conviction of the guilty parties, which is the task not of the press but of the state.
Good lawmen, prosecutors and judges welcome the help of the press in exposing corruption. So essential is this function that Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., has said: "With minor exceptions, every major scandal in public office over the past 20 years was uncovered by the press."
Legislators in many states have passed "shield laws" to supplement the First Amendment in protecting reporters from harassment about their sources.
But some prosecutors and judges wear the mantle of Richard Nixon, the king of coverup. Nixon was haunted by dark secrets and, in an attempt to hide them committed first the blunders and then the crimes that produced the greatest political scandal in American history — Watergate.
A little of Watergate still lingers at all levels of government.

'I don't quite see how we link up'

In California, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York and Ohio, reporters have been subpoenaed — more than 50 in the past four months — and placed in varying degrees of jeopardy over this matter of confidential sources.
We will cite three cases at random:
— In Fresno, Calif., four newsmen from the Fresno Bee have been sentenced to indefinite jail terms by Judge Denver Peckinpaugh for refusing to disclose where they obtained grand jury evidence of local corruption. California has a shield law, which supposedly prevents judges from ordering reporters to divulge their sources. But Judge Peckinpaugh considers himself above that law, saying it intrudes on his prerogatives. Appeal pending.
— In Moscow, Idaho, Jay Shelledy of the Lewiston Morning Tribune has been sentenced to 30 days in jail by Judge Roy Mosman for refusing to reveal a news source. Appeal pending.
— In Los Angeles, Calif., reporter William Farr awaits an appeals ruling on whether he will be returned to jail — where he already has served 46 days — for refusing to reveal his sources to Judge Charles Older.
Such judges are not necessarily corrupt. Some are merely incompetent, others arrogant. In their puffed-up importance, they demand that all considerations must yield to the majesty of their courts.

In their narrow circle of omnipotence, they resent the necessary immunities that make possible the institutions that preserve freedom — immunities traditionally given the family, the church, the university, the press.
Others like Chief Justice Warren Burger with his talk of "pipsqueak reporters" regard the press that has embarrassed the Establishment as a menace to be put in its place.
So it is that in many places the courts, to augment their own power, are making war on the Constitution.
Space Genesis: Last week's linkup between the Apollo and Soyuz spacecrafts is a monumental step towards peace on earth. Few people realize, however, how it all began.
The ideas was conceived by editor Jess Gorkin of PARADE Magazine, who also first proposed the hot line between Moscow and Washington. His suggestion of a joint space flight was published in PARADE in 1966. Three years later, astronaut Frank Borman discussed the concept with Soviet cosmonaut Ghermain Titov. A final agreement was signed on May 24, 1972.
Soyuz commander Aleksei Leonov has acknowledged Gorkin's contribution. Said Leonov: "Now we will meet in space as this man (Gorkin) said. Together we have begun an irreversible thing."

Soften financial blow of illness with tax deductions

(Sixth of seven columns)

If you are hit by a major illness or injury in 1975, the calamity almost surely will put a substantial dent in your bank account. But with know-how and proper timing before the year ends, you may be able to soften the blow by doubling your tax-deduction relief.
For instance, assume that because of a serious illness in your family, you must purchase a hospital bed, a wheel chair, an orthopedic appliance, similar device. Assume too that this medical equipment costs you $300.
There's no question that this cost, as Prentice-Hall emphasizes, is a deductible medical expense.
Now let's make another happy assumption. That the patient fully recovers. The hospital bed (or other devices) are still as good as new but you, fortunately, have no further use for the items and would like to dispose of them.
Give the bed (or chair, orthopedic device, etc.) to a local hospital. By so doing, you have nailed down for yourself a charitable contribution deduction and the current market value of the gift is fully deductible on your '75 tax return.
Your tax saving puts a cherry ending to a sad beginning. For if, say, the present value of the medical equipment is $250, you have cashed in on $50 of tax deductions for items which originally cost you only $300.

To move to another area, it's most probable that your family is regularly asked to donate old or used clothing to some worthy charity for the annual rummage sale. It's also probable that you save clothing—apparel your children have outgrown—for this specific purpose.
You know these gifts qualify as charitable deductions but you don't know how much to deduct for the used clothing you give. You are not acquainted with the second-hand market, you are in no position to estimate the value. In fact, in the past you well may have skipped the deduction altogether because you did not know how to handle it.

But consider this actual case. Bob Ward contributed used clothing to a school for a rummage sale and gave other clothing to his church. He couldn't specifically identify the articles given, and he didn't have an appraisal made at the time of the donations. Nevertheless, Ward estimated the original cost of the clothing as $525 — and deducted 40 per cent of that amount.
The outcome? Although the IRS did not go along with the 40 per cent figure, it did allow a deduction for 20 per cent — or a welcome $100 for Ward.
You are entitled to a deduction for clothing you donate to charity. Don't miss out on it because of ignorance or laziness or failure to take the right steps in time. To get proof of the deductions you will take when you file next spring, ask the charity when you make your gifts this year for an appraisal of your gifts. Ask for the appraisal or appraisals in writing. Keep the statements.
The key point is that a gift of $100 never costs you $100 out-of-pocket. You get some of your money back on your tax return.

This is dramatized by the following figures prepared by the Research Institute of America of the out-of-pocket cost of a $100 deductible contribution at various income levels (disregarding the earned income ceiling) for a married couple. Itemizing your deductions and filing a joint return.

Publisher's notebook

Our super sellers

By ALAN GOULD Jr.
Some of the best sales people we have don't work for The Pocono Record.

As most realize, we have two sources of revenue at the newspaper. Advertising provides about three-quarters of our income. Sales of the paper (what we call circulation) add the other 25 per cent. And about one-third of our circulation is handled by carriers.

Carriers can be some of our "best sales people" although they do not technically work for us. We sell The Record to the boys and girls for 11.25 cents and bill them each week. It is usually up to them to collect 15 cents per copy from you.

An alternative, which an increasing number of you are taking, is to pay The Record direct on a quarterly, semi-annual or annual basis. This saves the carrier and you the trouble of collections. About 20 per cent of our carrier subscribers use this "office-pay" system. More might if they knew how it works to everyone's advantage.

A friend who earned his first real money as a Record carrier a few decades ago, was recalling that he didn't mind the delivery six mornings a week as much as he did the attempts at collecting on Saturday afternoons.

"Now I'm in the position of the customer and I know we complicate life for our carrier," he said. "We are out so often when he comes and there are times when we're in a rush and don't have the money handy."

Multiply that by 40 or 50 customers — the average route — and you can imagine why collecting is the tough part of being a carrier.

"Why don't you arrange to pay at The Record?" the friend was asked. "Over 1,000 carrier customers do."

"I would," he said, "but I want the boy to get his full commission."

There's the misunderstanding. Most carriers would appreciate you paying in advance at the office on Lenox Street. They get the same 3.75 cents per paper. It's deducted from the bill.

In fact we have a couple of enterprising carriers who've convinced a majority of their customers to pay via a billing from our office. Instead of a bill each week, they get a Record check.

Two other carrier routes (in what we call a "transient" area) have been completely office-pay for a year. The kids were getting stuck too often by customers who moved without paying. Of course, when a carrier finds his profit disappearing through uncollectible bills, he grows to dislike his work.

When Gerry Eckman, our assistant circulation manager, realized what was happening, he worked out a system of self defense — pay in advance at the office. Now if anyone gets stuck it is not the carrier but The Record. And if our systems are go, it can be no more than a week that you get a paper without paying your bill. At that point delivery is stopped via a note from us to the carrier.

With the exceptions of that one transient area that gave us trouble, you'd be surprised at the accounts-receivable position of our 145 carrier routes. In two years we have had only four carriers who quit and didn't pay their full account. And week after week the carrier "aging" shows only two or three who are behind in payment of their bill to us. That's maybe two per cent.

It's a terrific testimonial to our youngsters at any time; in these times it's sensational. If the older folks who run our businesses could match that record, we'd have no recession.

And speaking of counter-recession, Gerry ran a subscription contest last month. Such contests are a super challenge because The Record has virtual saturation coverage in the areas it services.

But people move, things change and, anyway, the kids brought in over 150 new customers for us and themselves. Salesman? You bet. And sales persons too (15 of the routes are staffed by girls).

We have to think that being a carrier helps the young people get started right. We see it work each day.

Life expectancy

By JOHN L. MOORE
Harrisburg News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

White babies are expected to outlive non-white babies "by as much as seven to eight years," but non-white people who reach age 70 "now outlive those whites who have survived to" their 70th birthdays, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

The department, in a recent report based on birth and death statistics through 1973, noted that:

"For reasons not completely understood, non-whites who survive to 70 years or older have a consistently better life expectancy than do whites who survive to the same old ages."

"For example, those non-whites who reach their 70th birthday may expect to live another 12.2 years as compared with another 11.7 years expected for their white counterparts."

"Non-whites who have lived as long as 85 years still may expect to live additional seven years when only five additional years may be expected for their white counterparts."

This is intriguing in that the study also found, "as of 1973 white babies born in Pennsylvania may expect to live 71.8 years whereas non-white babies born in Pennsylvania may expect to live only 65.0 years, a difference of approximately seven years."

The study also determined that, regardless of race, "as of 1973, male babies in Pennsylvania were expected to live 67.5 years as compared with 74.9 years expected for female babies in Pennsylvania, a difference of approximately 7.5 years."

For people who actually live to age 65, "the remaining life expectancy does not differ appreciably between white and non-white groups," according to the study which added:

"For example, in Pennsylvania, those whites who reached (their) 65th birthdays during 1973 had an expectation of 14.7 more years of life as compared with 14.4 more years of life expected for non-whites at age 65 years. In the U.S. as a whole the counterpart was 15.3 more years for whites, and 14.7 more years for non-whites."

The study also found that "during the 1970-73 period, the life expectancy at age 65 of non-white population actually declined very slightly whereas the same (the life expectancy) for the white population increased slightly."

Additionally, the report said it found "some interesting sex differences in the life expectancy at age 65 years." Women reaching their 65th birthdays "are still expected to outlive men" who live to age 65, but between 1970 and 1973, "women's remaining life expectancy further improved" while "men's remaining life expectancy did not."

Congressional roll call

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — In key roll call votes last week, both the House and Senate passed an oil price control measure to counteract President Ford's plan to decontrol the price of oil. In addition, the Senate passed legislation mandating fuel economy standards for new cars, establishing funds for coastal states to meet the impact of energy resource development and rejecting a bid for a recount in the disputed New Hampshire Senate race.

The Senate: — Extended the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act until March 1, 1976, approved 62-29; — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., no; Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., yes.

— Extended oil price controls until December 31, extended from five days to twenty the time for either House to veto a presidential decontrol plan and rolled back the price of "new" oil, approved 57-40.

Scott, no; Schweiker, yes. — Established mandatory fuel economy standards for new cars, approved 63-21.

Scott, yes; Schweiker, yes. — Authorized $300 million, three-year program for coastal states to meet the impact of energy resource development, approved 73-15.

Scott, yes; Schweiker, yes. — A motion to conduct a recount of certain precincts in the disputed New Hampshire Senate race, rejected 44-49.

Scott, no; Schweiker, yes.

The House: The conference report extending oil price controls until December 31 and granting either House 20 days rather than five to veto any presidential plan to decontrol prices, as well as rolling back the price of "new" oil, approved 239-172.

Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-10, yes; Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-15, yes.

HARRISBURG — The state Senate this week rejected Gov. Milton J. Shapp's nominations of James McHale as Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary, of Philip Kalodner to a seat on the state Public Utility Commission, and of Henry H. Kaplan to the state Liquor Control Board.

Of five major nominees, only two — State Police Commissioner James Barger and Liquor Control Board Member Daniel Pennick — secured the 34 votes needed for Senate confirmation.

Sen. T. Newell Wood, R-Luzerne, voted against confirming Barger, McHale, Kalodner and Kaplan but voted in favor of Pennick.

BOGOTA, Colombia UPI — Regular gasoline, heavily subsidized by the government, sells for 11 cents U.S. per gallon in the Colombian capital.

Sen. Frederick H. Hobbs, R-Schuylkill, voted to confirm Barger, McHale, Kalodner, Kaplan and Pennick.

In the House of Representatives, legislation to merge the state Department of Property and Supplies with the General State Authority to create a new Department of General Services was approved 117-75.

Most Democrats voted for approval; most Republicans voted against.

Reps. Raphael Musto, D-Luzerne, and Russell Kowalshyn, D-Northampton, voted for passage. Rep. William Foster, R-Wayne, voted against.

The Senate and House each considered separate bills intended to make pay toilets illegal. The House approved its bill, 112-78, but the Senate rejected its proposal, 37-12.

Sen. Wood and Sen. Hobbs voted against the Senate bill.

Musto and Kowalshyn voted for the House bill; Foster voted against.

The House bill now goes to the Senate for consideration.

CHIROPRACTIC
IN MENOPAUSE
Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, D.C.

The question is often asked if Chiropractic can help Menopause. The answer is Yes. Many women accept menopause with relative comfort indicating that this time of life should not be accompanied by distress. Other women pass through menopause with much distress, with a great deal of variance of effects. Such as irritability, insomnia, palpitation, hot flashes and flushing of the face; all due to instability of the nervous system regulating the circulation and hormone balance.

The nervous system often can be effectively regulated with Chiropractic and reduce many or all of distress symptoms. (One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas Franklin Snyder, Chiropractic Orthopedist, Brodheadsville, Pa., 18322. Phone, 992-4787).

Ann Landers

Some dilemma

Dear Ann Landers: I read a wire story recently that said the students at the University of Texas in Austin facetiously adopted a resolution requiring coeds to wear a bra if they flunked the "Ann Landers Pencil Test."

It seems, according to the "Oracle of the Midwest" (that's you, Babe), any woman who can support a pencil under her breast should wear a bra. Well, I've got a real problem. I tried the pencil test on myself and the pencil stays very nicely under my left breast, but no way will it stay under my right one. What should I do about this cockeyed dilemma?

Keeping Abreast Of The Times

Dear Keeping: You should wear a bra for at least one very obvious reason. And may I suggest a little padding on the right side to help balance the budget?

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please rerun that wonderful column in which the difference between Love and Infatuation is explained so beautifully? My Numero Uno and I would appreciate it very much. —

A Big Fan

Dear Fan: Here is is — with pleasure.

LOVE OR INFATUATION? Infatuation leaps into bloom. Love usually takes root slowly and grows with time.

Infatuation is accompanied by a sense of uncertainty. You are stimulated and thrilled but not really happy. You are miserable when he is absent. You can't wait until you see him again.

Love begins with a feeling of security. You are warm with a sense of his nearness, even when he is away. Miles do not separate you. You want him near. But near or far, you know he's yours and you can wait.

Infatuation says, "We must get married right away. I can't risk losing him."

Love says, "Don't rush into anything. You are sure of one another. You can plan your future with confidence."

Infatuation has an element of sexual excitement. If you are honest, you will discover it is difficult to enjoy one another unless you know it will end in intimacy.

Love is the maturation of friendship. You must be friends before you can be lovers.

Infatuation lacks confidence. When he's away you wonder if he's with another girl. Sometimes you even check.

Love means trust. You may fall into infatuation, but you never fall in love. Infatuation might lead you to do things for which you might be sorry, but love never will.

Love leads you up. It makes you look up. It makes you think up. It makes you a better person than you were before.

CONFIDENTIAL to Hungry For Friendship And Dying Of Starvation: Your problem is that you think so poorly of yourself you can't imagine anyone wanting to be your friend. Get some counseling and become acquainted with yourself. When you discover you are worthy of friendship you'll be able to extend your hand to others and they will reach out and accept what you have to offer.

Dear Ann Landers: I violently disagree with your advice to "No Baloney." I, too, have wretched, miserable parents and I decided to cut them out of my life and have nothing to do with them. It was a good decision.

Why cater to people you intensely dislike and whose presence is distressing? Every man and woman who produce children are NOT parents. I disagree that children owe parents anything. You don't owe one damn thing to people who make your life hell. I have two children of my own and I am not a nut. Unlike my neurotic mother, I have wonderful friends. I function well in the community and deal successfully with my neighbors, associates and my children.

So my advice to "No Baloney" is, "Right on!" Get away from those corrosive people. Move 2,000 miles from them. Build your own world of relationships as you want them. A lot of people will not understand what I am saying, but I understand.

Dear Walked: Too bad you and "Baloney" can't get together and swap stories about your "lousy" parents. You kids would have a ball.

Go ahead and beat your gums from not till doomsday about how "well-adjusted" and "content" you are, but you know deep in your guts that you have failed to deal successfully with a very important problem — so you ran away from it. No desire

DIFFERENT: (Q.) I have never seen a letter like this in your column. You see, there is this girl, Amy, that I think I like but I'm not sure, because all the other girls I have liked I have thought a lot about having sex with.

But all I want to do with Amy is talk to her, swim, eat, go horseback riding and all that kind of stuff. Please help me.

I'm Awfully Mixed Up in Massachusetts

(A.) Do not abandon Amy just because she does not now arouse desire in you. If you like her and she likes you and you enjoy being together doing everyday things, there is the likelihood that you later will grow interested in each other romantically.

Such friendships lead to very strong ties. They are often the way in which the truest and finest marriages are made.

ASK HIM? (Q.) I'm in love with my brother's friend. He's 16 or 17. I'm 12. He talks to me every time he sees me, but so do all my brother's friends. I thought about having my brother ask him if he likes me, or should I ask him? Don't tell me to forget him.

In Love in Indiana

(A.) Do not ask the boy how he feels about you. Do not ask your brother, or anyone else, to ask him. Simply enjoy liking him and talking with him.

You will probably continue to like him, but in time you will find yourself liking some other boy, some younger boy, better. Then you will be more comfortable and you will recognize that this friend of your brother's is not the right age for you.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Septuagenarian Bing Crosby is about to celebrate 50 years in the entertainment game, and, although he has made it seem casually like play, he has worked hard to achieve that celebrated air of nonchalance.

One thing he is not nonchalant about is the quality of most of the movies that flood the market. Give a listen to Der Bingle. The Old Groaner's entitled to a few groans.

"There's an old saying in show business, particularly the movies and the legitimate stage, that the filmmakers and stage producers give the public just what the public wants.

"It sounds like a logical theory, but it is somewhat misleading.

"Take the movies as a prime example. What's actually happening is that Hollywood studios, as well as the foreign filmmakers, are turing out pictures that are wanted by only a minority of the potential moviegoing population — a ridiculous situation that could be changed by the film fans if they asserted themselves in volume.

"With exception of the handful of intensively promoted 'blockbusters' such as 'Love Story,' 'The Godfather,' 'The Exorcist,' 'The Towering Inferno,' 'Jaws,' and the few others that come along each year, sometimes by pure accident, the average motion picture draws less than 15 per cent of the people who are basically movie fans.

"This has been going on for so many years now that you would think the producers would wise up and learn more about what moviegoers want by studying what they DON'T want — and do something about it.

"Instead the major studios try to put out a couple of smash hits each season, hoping these will offset the losses on the als-rans, while the small independents mostly focus on what they call 'exploitation' films, and some frankly go in for low-cost, X-rated pornography or other sensational stuff that is geared to lure the suckers for such junk.

"The recent general trend to more and more sex and violence has attracted big attendance to a limited number of films — but alienated the millions who used to go to the wholesome movies every week or oftener.

"Film producers and distributors have publicized, advertised and exploited their limited-rated attractions with all-out campaigns — helped by plenty of free assists in publicity from the media both nationally and in communities where the controversial films ran into legal difficulties because the authorities regarded them as obscene or too violent. All this publicity helped draw customers.

"Movies of the kind that parents would not hesitate to take their children to see not only don't enjoy the teaser publicity generated by daringly obscene films, but also the producers and distributors most of the time don't bother to give the 'clean' pictures and adequate advance campaign to inform the public about them.

"When there's a picture that you would like to have seen — but missed it because it opened and closed before you even knew about it — you should complain to the theater manager. In fact, if enough film fans conveyed their views to cinema operators in their communities, and the theater men in turn passed the comments along to Hollywood, the groundswell could eventually have some influence in bringing you better films.

"Stars no longer have a big enough faithful following to assure their boxoffice draw in both good and bad stories. Two film hits in a row can catapult a newcomer to stardom — and two flops in a row can topple him or her just as fast. Only a few seasons ago, Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton were considered invincible, so much in demand by producers that they could write their own ticket. Today Robert Redford and Barbra Streisand hold sway. Tomorrow, who knows? There are talented artists — but all are at the mercy of story material.

"Many popular personalities of the past are not being seen much on the screen these days, though the fans continue to express high interest in them. The reason is that they can't find acceptable scripts. I can't imagine Bob Hope or James Stewart appearing in a pornographic picture. Nor would you have seen the late Jack Benny in one.

"I'd like to do an occasional movie again myself, now that I'm back in good health. My annual television special with members of my family — Kathryn, Mary Frances, Harry Jr. and Nathaniel — is fine as far as it goes, but I still feel heartily enough as a song-and-dance man and actor to go a longer way than that. I've read dozens of scripts, however, and haven't found a decent one in the lot.

"Nevertheless, I'm not about to retire. I've been in show business so long that I'd feel completely lost if I quit. But I certainly would like to do something more than an occasional television show and album.

"It may be too much to hope for another teaming-up with Bob Hope in a movie, but it's a pleasant thought, anyway, and if he had the time for it I'd jump at the chance. In the four decades that I've known Hope, we've never had an argument. Some spirited discussions, yes, but nothing you could call a quarrel. I think it's very difficult to pick a fight with Hope.

"A lot of people have a mental picture of me as a guy who never really worked hard at anything in his life. I'd like to correct that little illusion. I've worked hard at a lot of things, but because I liked doing them I guess they came off as easy, and it looked as though I was just waltzing through them without a thought in the world. Doesn't John Wayne do pretty much the same thing? And leave with the new generation.

is still going strong after some 45 years!

"One ray of hope that I see on the horizon is the increasing interest in nostalgia, both on the screen and on the Broadway stage. There are always better days ahead of us just make the most of them — and that's a thought I'd like to leave with the new generation."

ATTENTION AREA MERCHANTS

C.C.C., CONSUMER COUPON CORPORATION OF AMERICA, will be opening its first C.C.C. Coupon Center in the Stroudsburg area during the first week of August. Because of the success of our merchant enrollment program, which is designed to unite your business with all other varieties of retail business and service in a total shopping program for the consumer, we are running way behind our schedule.

Our personnel are still busy trying to contact you but if you have not been called as yet, we strongly urge you to call us at 424-6910 if you are at all interested in what our program can do for your business. We will be happy to arrange an appointment with you to have one of our representatives explain the C.C.C. program to you. AGAIN, we strongly implore you to hear our program while it is still in the introductory "no cost" stage.

Erma Bombeck

Can't understand

My goodness, the children have only been out of school for six weeks. Time flies when you're under sedation, doesn't it?

As I was hiding from them in the back seat of the car just last week it occurred to me that I don't know children at all. I'm raising three of them and yet they remain one of life's greatest mysteries.

For example, I don't understand how come a child can climb up on the roof, scale the TV antenna and rescue the cat ... yet cannot walk down the hallway without grabbing both walls with his grubby hands for balance.

Or how come a child can eat yellow snow, kiss the dog on the lips, chew gum that he has found in the ashtray, put his mouth over a muddy garden hose nozzle ... and refuse to drink from a glass his brother has just used.

Why is it he can stand with one foot on first base while reaching out and plucking a baseball off the ground with the tips of his fingers ... yet cannot pick up a piece of soap before it melts into the drain.

Explain to me how he can ride a bicycle, run, play ball, set up a camp, swing, fight a war, swim and race for eight hours ... and has to be driven to the garbage can.

It puzzles me how a child can see a dairy bar three miles away, but cannot see a 4x6 rug that has scrunched up under his feet and has been dragged through two rooms.

Why is it a child can reject a hot dog with mustard served on a soft bun at home ... yet eat six of them two hours later at 50 cents each.

How come I can trip over a kid's shoes under the kitchen sink, in the bathroom, on the front porch, under the coffee table, in the sandbox, in the car, in the clothes hamper and on the washer ... but we can never find them when it is time to cut the grass.

Why is the sun hotter delivering papers than it is goofing around ... when it is the same sun?

How come they can't remember what time they're supposed to be home, but they remember they did dishes a week ago Wednesday two nights in a row because we had spaghetti and a spoon got caught in the disposal and they traded off.

I'll never understand how a child can't even find his English book when it is under his right hand, but can find his mother hiding out in the back seat of a car.

Ex-Pike treasurer dies at 78

MILFORD — Edward S. Parson, 78, of Milford was found dead at his home on Friday, July 18.

A resident of Milford for 25 years, and prior to that of Greentown, he was treasurer of Pike County for two years and prothonotary of Pike for 12 years. Prior to holding the two offices he served as assistant superintendent of highways for the county.

Born in Manhattan, N.Y., he was the son of Edward S. and Mary Wales Parsons. He was a member of Milford Lodge 344, F&AM. He was a veteran of World War I.

He is survived by two sons, Edward, Greentown, and Herbert, Glen Cove, Long Island, N.Y., and several grandchildren.

Graveside services were held Saturday in Greentown.

Memorial services will be held at 2 p.m. today at the Stroyan and Crellin Funeral Home, Milford with Rev. James McCoy officiating.

Bradley Smith

EAST STROUDSBURG — Bradley E. Smith, 41, of 846 Thomas St., Stroudsburg died Saturday in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Smith was born in South Sterling, a son of the late Arnold T. and Olive (Whittaker) Smith. He had been a resident of Stroudsburg the past 21 years and was employed by the Pleasant Valley Manor in Snyder'sville the past 10 years.

He was a member of the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees Union Local 2675 and was a social member of Stroudsburg V.F.W. Post 2540.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Geraldine Smith of Stroudsburg and Mrs. Jeanne Jenkins of Scranton; a brother, Robert W. Smith of New Hope; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Lanterman Funeral Home, 27 Washington St., East Stroudsburg with the Rev. Jeffrey Leininger officiating. Burial will be in the Pine Grove Cemetery in South Sterling.

Visiting will be from 7 to 9 p.m. today at Lanterman Funeral Home.

Sarah Ackerman

BAYSHORE, N.Y. — Sarah H. Ackerman, 83, of 49 Patchogue Ave., East Islip, Long Island, N.Y., died Saturday in the Southside Hospital, Bayshore, Long Island.

Born in Stroudsburg, she was the daughter of the late Martin L. and Emma Hartman.

She was a member of the Lutheran faith.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ruth M. Voelker, East Islip, Long Island; a son, John L. Baylor, Stroudsburg; two sisters, Mrs. Harry Lynn and Mrs. Charles Slutter, both of Stroudsburg; seven grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday from the William R. Thomas Funeral Home, with the Rev. William C. Leopold officiating.

Burial will be in the St. John's Cemetery, Bartonsville.

There will be no viewing.

Feed grain rule input solicited

STROUDSBURG — The U.S. Department of Agriculture called for comments on its proposed determination for the 1976 Feed Grain and Wheat Programs, according to William Baumgartner, chairman of Monroe County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The Secretary of Agriculture proposes to make determination and issue regulations relative to:

- The national feed grain allotment. The Secretary announced on April 10 that the 1976 wheat allotment would be 61.6 million acres. (The Secretary is required to announce the wheat allotment by April 15 of each year for the crop to be harvested in the next calendar year. For feed grain the determination for the 1976 crops must be announced by December 31, 1975.)
- Whether there should be a set aside requirement for feed grains and wheat for the 1976

Monroe abortions at six for '74 4th quarter

HARRISBURG — There were six abortions in Monroe County reported during the last quarter of 1974, out of a total of 7,770 abortions across the state, according to Pennsylvania Department of Health Statistics.

The health department figures are the first issued since the Abortion Control Act became effective Oct. 10, 1974 which requires the department to collect the data. Pennsylvania reported 16,247 abortions for the last quarter of 1974 and first quarter of 1975.

Only 18 counties, out of a total of 66 counties that reported figures, had fewer reported abortions than Monroe during the three-month period.

Alvin H. Tucker, Jr., a health department spokesman, said as of March 15, 1975, 122 approved facilities were notified to submit abortion reports to the commonwealth. A total of 10 hospitals and one clinic did not file reports for the first quarter of 1975.

Tucker said the department estimates about 30,800 abortions were performed in Pennsylvania last year. The Center For Disease Control, Atlanta, Ga., in its July 2 report notes that 15,100 abortions were reported in the state during 1973. Tucker said the state has improved its reporting system in the last six months which accounts for the higher number of reported abortions.

In 1974 the residential breakdown was 6,661 patients from Pennsylvania; 846 from other states and 213 residence unknown. In the first quarter of 1975, 7,503 were Pennsylvanians and 1,024 were from other states.

The breakdown in 1974 by age group is: Less than 15 years, 143; 15-19, 2,569; 20-24, 2,502; 25-29, 1,182; 30-34, 710; 35-39, 410; 40-44, 151; over 44, 17 and age unknown, 27.

In 1974 Allegheny County led with the largest number of reported abortions, 1,392 followed by Philadelphia County, 1,115.

E.S. zone board hears sign plea

EAST STROUDSBURG — Lloyd Crede asked the East Stroudsburg Zoning Hearing Board how he can run a business without a sign on his building.

Manor board may expand

STROUDSBURG — The board of directors of Pleasant Valley Manor Inc. (PVM Inc.) may be expanded to five or seven members once the nursing home is transferred to a non-profit corporation next month.

Thomas R. Joyce, secretary-treasurer of PVM Inc., said Friday he will remain on the board only long enough to be assured the construction of a 61-bed addition to the manor is well underway.

Joyce said the board would be expanded to include more members from the general community a month or two after the facility is transferred to a non-profit corporation.

Current provisions call for three members. Presently, Joyce and Claude Heller are the only two board members. County Commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, who had appointed herself to the board, resigned April 7.

Joyce said his main concern is getting the addition completed before the county runs out of room for indigent nursing patients. He said the new wing is urgently needed.

Crede and William Fisher, of the Prudential Insurance Company, asked the hearing board Thursday night to approve a variance to allow them to place two plaques on the building and erect an illuminated sign.

"We get a large number of complaints every day from policy holders who can't find our office. It's causing us extreme hardship," Crede said.

Prudential rents 70 per cent of the space in the building at 401 Prospect St. but the other occupant has already installed signs which use up all the space allowed for signs by the borough's zoning ordinance.

The insurance company wants to install two 20 by 16 inch plaques, which Crede said were like those on "all our over 600 offices."

The two-sided illuminated sign would measure 6 by 3 feet

Tire shop damaged by fire

STROUDSBURG — Burning tires generated intense heat and heavy smoke for 52 firemen who spent nearly two hours early Sunday fighting a blaze at Stroud Tire Service, 100 Park Ave.

One Stroudsburg fireman, Rick Doleiden, suffered cuts when a window was broken to enter the main part of the building. Doleiden was treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Stroudsburg Fire Chief Thomas Phillips said the fire started at 1:45 a.m. in the center of the building where machinery is kept to buff old tires prior to recapping.

Smoke and heat was so bad firemen had to work in shifts, wearing masks, Phillips said.

Firemen couldn't get into the building for quite a while, according to Phillips, because heavy doors had to be battered open.

School meets

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Board of Education meeting of the East Stroudsburg Area School District that normally would be held on the third Monday of July will be held at 8 p.m. July 28 in the board room of the district's Administration Center, East Stroudsburg.

and be mounted so it faced Interstate 80.

Crede said the sign would have soft, "very subtle" fluorescent lighting and would probably be turned off by 9 or 10 p.m.

He added that there is only one resident in the area and the side of that house facing the office is "almost blank."

"We're willing to compromise, but now we're not in a position to do business. It's like driving around town looking for a doctor without any signs," Crede said.

In other business, the board heard a request from the East Stroudsburg Area School district for a variance to develop five and a half acres of vacant land into athletic fields between the stadium and Broadhead Creek.

The school district also requested a variance to build a maintenance garage for buses at the junior-senior high school.

Also, the board continued a hearing on an application from Irvin T. Burch to create a group home at 285 Prospect St. Chairman Carl Smith asked

No further testimony was received in a continued hearing for Soble Construction Company's request for a special use permit for a planned unit development adjacent to Spangenburg Avenue and Adelaide Street.

Parents press alternative for kindergarten schedule

STROUDSBURG — The idea of their kindergarten-age offspring attending school for full days every day for alternating quarters of the school year does not appeal to a group of Stroudsburg parents.

The parents will meet with Russell E. Treible, director of elementary schools for the Stroudsburg Area School District, today to present their alternate suggestion to the kindergarten schedule tentatively approved by the school board last Wednesday.

Parents described the school board's plan as "a quarter of exhaustion in school followed by a quarter of boredom at home."

"I feel five-year-olds can't go to school all day every day. It's too wearing on them," said Mrs. William Schmidt, one of the parents in the group that wants to change the schedule.

In the past, kindergarten children attended a half day of school daily throughout the school year. But in order to save on transportation costs, the school board decided to change that schedule for the coming school year.

The parents propose a program where half the kindergarten children attend a full day of school on Mondays and Wednesdays and the others attend Tuesdays and Thursdays. Fridays would be designated for in-service programs, parent-teacher conferences and special appointments.

"The ideal is half a day every day, but that's out of the question now," said Mrs. William Block. "With our plan at least they would have a day in between to rest up and recuperate."

Besides preparing for their meeting with Treible, the parents are circulating petitions to gather support. They are planning to present their idea to the school board at the August 20 meeting.

Treible confirmed that he had an appointment to discuss kindergarten scheduling with the parents. He said he'd be "receptive" to their ideas.

Treible explained he originally felt the schedule should run on an alternating week basis, but changed his position when the teachers he spoke to said they needed a greater time span to work with the children.

He proposed to the board that the quarter method be tried until the middle of next year. Then a decision on whether to continue that schedule or change it would be made on the basis of evaluations.

"I've had a lot of calls on it," Treible said. "It's not a locked-in issue at all."

He declined to comment on the alternating full days proposal until it is presented to him by the parents group when they meet at 2 p.m. today.

Parents interested in joining those already working to change the kindergarten scheduling can contact the following people for further information: Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt, 424-2327; Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin, 421-6449; Dr. and Mrs. William Rogers, 424-6186; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sterner, 424-8544; and Mr. and Mrs. William Block, 421-7676.

McDonald does it all for itself

STROUDSBURG — McDonald's, the fast-food restaurant chain, has applied to the Department of Labor and Industry, for building permits for a proposed restaurant on Main Street.

Paul B. Smoley, commercial sales manager of Country Cousins Realty, said the food chain has options to purchase five properties in the 300 block of Main Street if it can get all the necessary permits.

Country Cousins owner Ray Roberts said McDonald's has not made a definite commitment yet and won't until all the permits are received.

"Any number of things can happen between now and then. Their feeling is that they're not ready to commit themselves yet. And we're not spending the commission yet, either," Roberts said.

"They're interested enough to have test borings and surveys made. The preliminary plot plans are laid out," added Smoley.

He said the chain expects to receive approval from Labor and Industry Tuesday and will then apply for local permits.

"The area's zoned commercial, so there's no problem with zoning. I don't know what kind of variances may be needed," Smoley said.

The chain hopes to build a 200-seat restaurant on property fronting on both Main and McConnell Streets.

Roberts said the chain has four basic styles, ranging from colonial to contemporary, which would be adapted to fit the area.

The real estate firm has been working for a year and a half to arrange a transaction for McDonald's.

"Basically, we looked in just that section of town. There was no serious consideration of any other areas. Actually, McDonald's gave us a three-block area to work from," Roberts said.

Rain, traffic plague police

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Police were plagued Sunday with minor accidents caused by an afternoon thunderstorm, snarled traffic on Interstate 80 and a threat of a riot at the Saylor's Lake Pavilion. Saylor'sburg.

State police at Swiftwater reported three weather-related minor accidents on I-80 and a three-vehicle collision on Rte. 209 at the Holiday Inn in Smithfield Township.

Two people were injured in the Rte. 209 chain-reaction collision which started when Cynthia Staples, 18, of Stroudsburg collided with the car ahead of her, driven by Fred Dilley, 70, of Budd Lake, N.J.

Dilley's car then rammed into a car driven by Archibald Fisher, 44, of Washington, N.J.

Injured were Cynthia Staples and Allen Fisher, both treated and released from the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Tpr. Delvin Powell, state police at Swiftwater, said reports on the other accidents would not be completed until today because police had been called at 7 p.m. to the Saylor's Lake Pavilion to quell a possible riot.

Powell said six troopers were sent to the scene after the barracks received a call that 25 persons "had lined the main road ready to fight."

"When police arrived, the groups of kids ran. Nothing developed, there were no fights and no one was arrested," Powell said.

Powell said there were threats of violence last weekend at the pavilion by a group of teenagers.

State police also spent several hours Sunday afternoon, attempting to unsnarl traffic on I-80 that had backed up for seven miles from the Delaware Water Gap Toll Bridge to the Park Avenue Exit in Stroudsburg.

Powell said the traffic tie-up on the eastbound lane of I-80 was not caused by the torrential downpour during the afternoon.

"This was a routine tie-up. It happens every Sunday, but it just got out of hand today," Powell said.

Powell said all toll booths were open at the Delaware River bridge, but heavy traffic slowed the process of funneling travelers through the gate.

Stroudsburg Police also reported two accidents Sunday: one in front of the Kentucky Fried Chicken Restaurant and a second on North Fifth Street. Details on the latter accident were not available.

Powell said Dean J. Barnefiter, 35, of 764 Seneca Way, Stroudsburg, hit a car in the rear, driven by Alfred Flessner, Branchville, N.J., as he was traveling east on lower Main St.

Barnefiter was charged with not having an operator's license, while Flessner was charged with making an improper left turn.

In other accidents in the county, two Virginia men were slightly injured after a 1:52 p.m. Sunday accident on Rte. 715 a half mile north from Rte. 611.

Pocono Township Police reported that Walter Snyder of Harrisonburg, Va. lost control of his car while traveling on Rte. 715.

Snyder's car went up an embankment and then tipped over on its side, police said.

Snyder's passenger, Leonard Jenkins, was taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County by the Pocono Ambulance Corps, where he was treated for head injuries and released.

Snyder refused treatment. Police reported the investigation is continuing.

Park tourneys scheduled

EAST STROUDSBURG — The 51st annual checkers and tetherball tournaments will be held at the Dansbury Park, East Stroudsburg at 1 p.m. Thursday and Wednesday respectively.

Interested participants will be divided into appropriate categories and registration is now being held at the concession stand at the park.

Damn the prices; fill 'er up

Gas cost: No one cares

By JEFF WIDMER
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — As traffic clogged the entrance ramps and eastbound lanes of Interstate 80 near Delaware Water Gap, as an attendant at Twenty-four Hour Gulf Service Station on Rte. 209 near East Stroudsburg filled the tank with 60.0-cents-a-gallon, no-lead gasoline, Clarence Blackburn swore.

"They're hell," he characterized gasoline prices in the Poconos, although he admitted prices here are two cents a gallon less than in his home town of Meriden, Conn.

Yet Blackburn's concern about the high cost of driving dwindled when he said he will continue to drive for pleasure, no matter how high the price of a gallon of gas climbs.

On a return trip from a visit with his mother in Butler, he said high gasoline prices "are not going to stop me from visiting my mother down there."

As Blackburn noticed, the price of gasoline is up again in Monroe County. But service station attendants and motorists don't seem overly concerned this time.

Prices for regular rose about two cents a gallon before the fourth of July weekend, but the end of the summer sprint toward 75 cents a gallon as predicted by energy experts has yet to materialize.

It was business as usual for county service stations Sunday as sightseers wound their way home through the Poconos and by the gas pumps.

At the Gulf station where Blackburn was filling up, regular sold for 58.9 and high test for 62.9 cents a gallon. Pete Brown of Flushing, N.Y., thought those prices were fine.

On Long Island, Brown sells Gulf and Mobil gasoline for 65.9 for regular and 70.9 for high test. He said there is not much he or the customer can do about rising fuel costs, and ended his comment with the familiar charge: "The oil companies are fixing the prices."

A stout, white-haired and freckled man in his late 50s said gasoline prices did not interest him. Prices are the same all over, he said. "When you know what's going on, you don't worry about it," the Lancaster resident said enigmatically.

Without giving an explanation or his name ("I don't want my name floating around up here. I own stock in Gulf oil."), he bounced into the seat of a gold Cadillac and pulled away.

Not only did motorists' reactions to gasoline prices vary Sunday, but a spot check showed both prices and businesses also differed.

"We have a lot of people who just drive in to check the price and drive out," said Gene Courtwright of Carl's Arco Service, North Courtland Street, East Stroudsburg.

A price hike of two cents a gallon three weeks has not affected business, but Arco has told station operators to stay open longer and sell more gasoline, he said.

Ed Haden of Zovak's Sunoco Service, West Main Street, Stroudsburg, said business was so good Sunday "I wish I had three more guys (to pump gasoline) today," even though regular there is up to 67 cents a gallon.

The station, next to an I-80 interchange, has lost no business by raising prices, he said.

Rainy weather curtails business more than high prices, commented Jim Adams of Sheraton Shell Service Center, a station situated a few hundred yards north of Zovak's.

Adams said at Shell, where regular was hiked from 59 to 61 and high test from 63 to 65 cents a gallon around July 4, higher prices have not cut business at all.

An employee at Frank Buck Exxon in Stroudsburg summed up the situation in the tourist-laden Poconos:

"City people are accustomed to paying more, at least that's what I understand from the Jersey people. They don't complain."

Neither do local customers, who pay 56.9 cents a gallon for regular and 62.9 cents a gallon for high test, he said.

"Everybody expects gas increases in the next year. It's beyond our control. We're the ones forced to give all the answers and deal with the public, which has to pay the price."

Like many local service stations, Buck's has been told to stay open longer and sell more gasoline.

"This is the second or third week we've had to extend hours. We're open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week."

Car, house burglarized

TANNERSVILLE — Most of the contents of a burglarized home were found by Pocono Township police late Saturday in a vehicle stolen from in front of the home earlier in the week.

Pocono Township police officer Rick Staples reported the burglars apparently broke into Susan Whalen's residence, Route 611, Tannersville, loaded what they wanted into her 1970 dark green Volkswagen sedan, and then towed the car away.

The vehicle was found at the top of the Timberhill Ski Area Saturday night. The burglary occurred between Wednesday and Thursday.

Police urge anyone who saw the car being towed in the Timberhill area to contact them.

Water system on DWG agenda

By HARRIET LEEDS

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Improvement of the antiquated water distribution system of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap will be the subject of a special council meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the municipal building on Main Street.

Borough officials contacted Sunday had differing opinions as to what specifically would be talked about at the meeting.

Mayor Francis "Casey" Drake said the Shepherd Avenue water line project would be discussed.

"Water problems in general" was council president John Jones' description of the agenda.

Water committee chairman Duane Walck said application for grant money to fund a completely new water pipeline for the borough would be planned.

At the regular council meeting July 7, Walck urged council to upgrade all the water mains in the borough that have been underground for more than 30 years.

Drake agreed, adding that perhaps three-quarters of the water system would have to be replaced.

"We don't dare put it off any longer," Drake said.

Council agreed it would be wise to look into obtaining federal or state grants to fund the project.

At present, borough employees using a recently-purchased secondhand backhoe are working on replacement of a 500 to 600 foot stretch of pipe on Shepherd Avenue in the vicinity of Minsi Drive.

Workmen trench out for Delaware Water Gap pipe project on Shepherd Ave.

"There have been numerous leaks in the area," said Walck. "It seems to be the oldest pipe. It's been opened twice since I've been on council and the pipe that comes out of it looks like a flute — it's full of little holes."

Walck asserted the section was the "absolute worst" on Shepherd Avenue, which for years has been known as the worst spot in the borough.

"This has been an immediate emergency" situation for two to three years," Walck said, "and it should have been done before."

The councilman said eventually the whole street would have to be re-piped.

"Certain council members are only willing to do this (replace the 500-600 feet) because we have the pipe on hand and we just bought the backhoe," Walck said. "I contend we will have to go farther."

Council president John Jones estimated the Shepherd Avenue project would be completed in about three weeks, depending on the weather.

He said the project is being funded through current revenue.

"We have no plans at the moment for the rest of Shepherd Avenue," Jones said. "If this doesn't solve the problem that'll be the next priority."

Jones added the new switch on the pump at the water storage tank on Dogwood Drive has been installed and "seems to be working all right."

Matthews was retired on the play which went from catcher Manny Sanguillen to second baseman Rennie Stennett to Stargell. (UPI)

Yankee hitters feast upon Twins' pitching

BLOOMINGTON, Minn.

(UPI) — Ed Herrmann hit a two-out pinch-hit single to score Rick Dempsey and key a two-run ninth inning New York rally as the Yankees notched a 5-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins and swept a doubleheader Sunday.

In the opener, home runs by Thurman Munson, Roy White and Bobby Bonds featured a 17-hit attack that powered the Yankees to a 14-2 win.

Thurman Munson triggered the second game rally with a leadoff triple and scored the tying run on Dempsey's single. Dempsey was sacrificed to second by Graig Nettles and moved to third on Chris Chambliss' fly to deep center. Herrmann, batting for Sandy Alomar, then sharply lined a single to left to score Dempsey with the winning run.

Eric Soderholm had give the Twins a 4-3 lead when he singled home Jerry Terrell with an unearned run in the seventh inning.

The Yankees scored two runs in the second but the Twins made it 2-2 in their half on consecutive singles by Steve Braun, Tom Lundstedt and Lyman Bostock.

Graig Nettles led off the Yankees third with a triple and scored on Chris Chambliss' single. The Twins came back with a run in their half of the inning when Carew walked, stole second, advanced to third on Soderholm's single and scored on a double play.

Rudy May (8-6) was the beneficiary of the New York attack in the opener. Munson, who had an RBI single in the sixth, nailed starter Ray Corbin for a two-run homer in the first.

Stroudsburg wins first North area crown since '63

By JOE MIEGOC
Record Sports Editor

MOUNT BETHEL. — In four of the previous five years, Stroudsburg had lost to Slate Belt in the North area final of the District 20 Little League tournament. That's all history now.

Stroudsburg, led by a long home run and five runs batted in by shortstop Larry Smith and the four-hit pitching of Russ Bardonex, defeated nemesis Slate Belt, 7-1, Saturday to win the North area crown for the first time since 1963.

Stroudsburg will return here Thursday at 6 p.m. to do battle with the East winner in play leading to the District championship.

As in each of its two previous tournament victories, Slate Belt, which had won the North title in 1967 and competed in the final in each of the five previous years while winning four titles (two straight after a loss in 1972 to Bangor), scored first with its lone run in the top of the second.

But, also as in the previous games, the opposition came back. In each of the other games, Slate Belt answered and won, but Stroudsburg was determined not to let it happen again.

Holding a 1-0 lead, loser John Goffredo let his wildness get him in trouble in the last of the third.

Art Volpe walked, John Bartron walked and Bardonex forced Bartron at second. A tumbling catch by shortstop Curt DePue momentarily held off Stroudsburg as George Strunk was robbed of a hit on a spectacular catch, but it didn't hold them long.

Smith fouled back the first pitch from Goffredo, but put the second far over the fence in left center for three runs and a 3-1 Stroudsburg lead.

Goffredo fanned Ed Gruszka to end the inning, but didn't get much rest as Bardonex wriggled out of a jam in the fourth. Goffredo doubled leading off and Brian Miller walked with two gone. He popped up catcher DuWayne Kutt to end the inning and sent Goffredo to the mound without much rest.

Again, Goffredo got in trouble with his control as Kerry Boyer walked leading off and took second on pinch-hitter Greg Barthold's single to center. Craig Tretthaway bounced to short, but DePue's throw was dropped by Miller for an error, loading the bases.

Volpe chopped a bouncer to DePue, who booted it for an error as Boyer came in for a 4-1 lead. At this point, Goffredo was relieved by Craig Ponturo, with DePue leaving the game and Goffredo moving to shortstop.

Bartron greeted Ponturo with a run-scoring single, but Bardonex popped to short and Strunk forced Tretthaway at the plate.

Smith then lined a first-pitch single to left-center, scoring two runs. Strunk was cut down at third on the play, ending the inning, but the damage was completed.

With a 7-1 advantage, Bardomex breezed through a 1-2-3 fifth and after Bill Glasgow singled to open the sixth, induced Goffredo to force Glasgow at second before striking out Ponturo and Dave DeCharme, both swinging, to end the game.

Slate Belt's run came in the third inning as Goffredo led off with the first of his two doubles, a line drive that hopped once before smacking against the left-center field fence.

Goffredo went to third on a passed ball, held there when DePue popped to Gruszka and then scored as Matt Casciano bounced to third. Goffredo held while Glasgow made the play to first to retire Casciano, but took off when Glasgow threw to first and easily beat the relay home to score.

The victory avenged a 6-5 extra inning defeat last year at the hands of Slate Belt and a 16-1 triumph the year before, also in a game Slate Belt won. Slate Belt had also beaten Stroudsburg in 1967, 1970 and 1971 to capture North area championships.

Bardonex, unlike his 4-0 opening-round victory when he struck out 10 against Pocono South, struck out five and let his fielders do most of the work with nine outs coming on ground balls and three outs on infield pop-ups.

Sandra Palmer pulls away from Women's Open field

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (UPI) — Sandra Palmer did something she thought she never would when she broke out of a massive jam Sunday to win the U.S. Women's Golf Championship.

"I look up at that trophy and I see names like Mickey Wright and Betsy Rawls winning this tournament," Miss Palmer said. "I never thought I was in that class."

With a final round even-par 72, Miss Palmer won by four strokes.

It was her second victory of the year but even though it was worth considerably less in cash than the $32,000 her first triumph brought her, Miss Palmer made it clear which victory meant more.

"I think every player's goal is to win the U.S. Open," Miss Palmer said. "I didn't even know what the money was ($8,044.76). When I won the Colgate Tournament I knew that that was $32,000."

She had been trying for more than a decade to win this title and finally succeeded on a course she said was the toughest she'd ever played. "I guess it was just my turn to win."

Miss Palmer, one of three players tied for the lead at the start of the final day—with 14 others within four strokes—forged ahead by sinking a 25-foot birdie putt at the fourth hole and then steadily gained ground as the other contenders simply fell apart down the stretch.

At the finish, her 72-hole score was 295, seven-over-par.

That's hardly an impressive figure by itself, but it was mighty good this week at the Atlantic City Country Club where ocean winds played havoc with shots and combined with a hot sun to bake the greens rock hard.

Nancy Lopez, an 18-year-old amateur, former champion JoAnne Carner and Sandra Post, one of the third-round leaders, tied for second place at 299 following final rounds of 75, 75 and 76 respectively.

The victory was worth $8,044.76 to the 34-year-old Miss Palmer, a 5-foot, 1-1/2 inch Texan who is no relation to Arnold Palmer, and assured her of her best season in 12 years on the LPGA tour. It raised her earnings to just under $65,000.

Miss Palmer, who trailed Judy Rankin by six strokes after a first-round 78, improved to 74 and 71 in the middle rounds.

Four American sprinters crack mile relay record

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Four American men who had never run together as a relay team and four German women in the same position had the fastest times ever for the mile when they did get together for an international track meet over the weekend.

Stan Vinson, as anchorman for team members Ronnie Ray, Robert Taylor and Maurice Peoples, broke the tape at 3:02.42 to the roar of a crowd of 25,000 at Duke University's Wallace Wade Stadium Saturday on the final day of the U.S.A.-Pan Africa-West Germany triangular track meet.

The previous record of 3:02.8 was set in Jamaica in 1966 by a combined team from Trinidad and Tobago.

The German team of Christiane Kreuze, Dagmar Fost, Erika Weinstein and Elke Barth turned in a time of 3:30.25 to break the women's record set by a U.S. national team in 1972 with a time of 3:39.9.

On the strength of outstanding performances by German women that included a world's record in the 440-yard relays Friday, the Germans edged the Americans in total scoring with 265 points to 263.5 with Pan Africa finishing third.

Rey, a rising senior at North Carolina Central University in Durham, didn't know until Friday that he would be on the team substituting for the injured Fred Newhouse.

The German women had left behind Rita Wilden, runnerup in the 400 meters in the 1972 Olympics.

The German men led through the first two laps with Ray turning in a split time of 46.4 seconds. Taylor, a 22-year-old from Houston, Tex., closed the gap with a time of 45.9 to the German's 46 seconds flat.

The 24-year-old Peoples of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., brought the crowd to its feet when he overtook Germany's Luther Kreig in the final turn. After the race, he said he sensed the German was tired.

"I'm like a shark, when I smell blood I attack," said Peoples, who crossed the three-quarter mile mark at 45.24 seconds.

And then it was all up to Vinson, who Friday won the 400 meter event. Germany's Bernd Hermann quickly grabbed the lead in the first stretch.

"I got worried even though he looked easy going by me," said Vinson.

"I stayed close and made my move going into the last straight. I get stronger. I get quicker going home. You never give up in a mile relay," he said.

Ten pacers qualify for Monticello Classic

MONTICELLO, N.Y. — Silk Stockings, Echo Brook Phil, and Tarport Hap captured the three elimination heats at Monticello Raceway Sunday to head the list of 10 qualifiers for next Sunday's $300,000 Monticello-OTB Classic.

Preston Burris Jr. drove Silk Stockings to her eighth straight victory in the first qualifying race in 2:02.3 over a rain-slowed track. Momentum and J.R. Call finished second and third.

In the second heat, Herve Fillion toured wire to wire with Echo Brook Phil, who was a two-length winner over Say No More. Tango Byrd finished another length back in third place.

Tarport Hap, with Del Miller in the sulky, won the third heat by a length-and-a-half over Shirley's Beau with Sprit Happy third.

In addition to the top three finishers in each qualifying race, Golden Fulla, fourth place finisher in the first heat won a spot in the Classic finals next Sunday.

Golden Fulla's time of 2:03.1 was the fastest among the fourth-place horses in the three heats.

Shawnee winners

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — Jamie McClintock and Virginia Waring teamed up to defeat Walter McClelland and Marianne Higgins, 6-1, 6-0 Sunday to capture the Shawnee Mixed Doubles Tennis Tournament.

First year pro pockets $40,000

Maltbie: Two PGA wins in a row

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — First year pro Roger Maltbie, unknown a month ago, Sunday charged to his second straight tournament win in the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Classic.

Maltbie, 24, eight strokes off the lead after two rounds, recorded a 67 Saturday and won the tournament with a final round 66—five under par—for a 276 total, one stroke better than Mac McLendon.

Maltbie, who won the Quad Cities Open at $15,000 last week, took home a first place check for $40,000.

Third round leader Danny Edwards lost three strokes to par on the first two holes and finished with a six-over-par 77 for a 284 total and a tournament tie for 22nd place with eight others.

Ben Crenshaw, Buddy Allin, Miller Barber and Jim Simons, who jumped into contention with a six-under-par 65, tied for third with a six-under-par 278.

Maltbie birdied three of the first five holes to tie for the lead but bogeyed the sixth and eighth holes to drop three strokes back of McLendon and Allin after 63 holes.

Maltbie then fired four birdies and five pars on the back nine to outdistance McLendon, who was the trade by a lone bogey on the par third 14th hole.

"I felt that if I could get the ball close enough to the hole today I knew I would get it in," said the confident native of Modesto, Calif. "I played well all four rounds of this tournament but the difference was I felt behind early in each of the first two rounds, but was three-under-par after six holes in the each of the last two rounds."

The actual winning shot came on the tricky double-waterhole 17th when Maltbie hit a six iron shot from the left rough, 15 feet past the flag and sank the putt.

"That six iron was really a great golf shot. The ball was in a hole in the rough and I could just as easily have put the shot in the lake. But it carried over the pin."

"Heading to the 18th tee, I knew I was going to make a par. There's no way when I'm ahead I won't," said Maltbie. McLendon appeared to be the man-to-be after sinking a 60 foot birdie putt on the ninth hole, then birding the 10th to go eight-under-par. "But, I lost the tournament by three-putting the 14th," said the 29-year-old Alabamian.

Crenshaw, flirting with the lead throughout the tournament, moved into a first place tie after four holes of the final round. Yet the former NCAA champion from the University of Texas was plagued by three bogeys that diminished his five birdies. He finished with a final round of 70.

CANCER

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — You should be full of bright ideas now; ready, willing and able to carry them out. Fine stellar influences stimulate ambitions and incentive.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Indicated now: Fine opportunities for advancing your status, new means toward the attainment of worthwhile objectives. Stress discretion and caution, however.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Some persons may try to put over dubious schemes, but the Gemini is usually above such tactics. Nevertheless, be careful not to fall into a trap. Some dandy advantages otherwise.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Here is a spot for you to outpoint those who are careless or do not reckon with contingencies — which the true Cancerian usually does.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Splendid prospects in sight. Even if results are not immediately forthcoming, good efforts will make a favorable impression, hasten reward.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Leave nothing to chance. Stress your innate meticulousness for detail and accuracy. In discussions, try to persuade gently, not with force.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Let some matters ride while you reorganize thoughts, plans, new methods of approach. A day of mixed influences — one which calls for astuteness, keen judgment.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Stress your first-rate initiative and all-around capability now. Pay no heed to interfering persons. Consider the production of that top effort a challenge.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Personal relationships now governed by exceptionally good influences. A fine day for holding conferences, meeting with others to negotiate plans for the common good.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — You should enjoy a lively feeling of usefulness and progressiveness. Keep eyes on target and don't be sidetracked to your disadvantage.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Don't become flustered over "cloudy" situations. Your good judgment should tell you how to cope. ALSO, your delightful sense of humor!

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Investigate whatever may stimulate your interests, but don't "go overboard" on a new proposition without looking beneath the surface.

YOU BORN TODAY are clever and talented; sensitive and artistic. Extremely versatile, there are many fields in which could shine, but you MUST learn to control periods of restlessness during which you scatter your energies, thus hindering accomplishment.

Declarer cashed the K-A of clubs, led the nine of hearts from dummy, and East was helpless. Belladonna was bound to make two trump tricks, whatever East did, and he scored 790 points for making the contract.

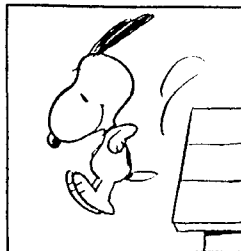

At the second table, the bidding went:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♥ 2 ♠ 2 NT
3 ♠ 4 ♠ 4 ♠ Dble

Opening lead — ace of hearts.
This deal occurred in a match between Italy and Sweden in the annual European championship. At the first table, Belladonna, for Italy, got to four spades doubled — and made the contract despite East's trump holding!

West led the ace and another heart. Belladonna ruffed and played a low trump to the queen and ace. East returned the nine of trumps to the ten and Belladonna played the jack of diamonds to the ace, the eight of diamonds, which held, a diamond to the ten, followed by the king of diamonds.

South won and returned the king of diamonds. West discarded a club and there was now no way of defeating the contract.

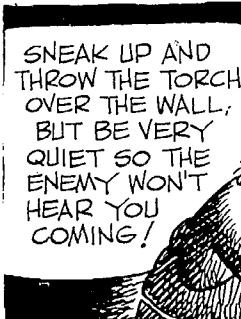

So Italy made a game with the East-West cards, as well as with the North-South cards, for a gain of 1,820 points. That's how championships are won!

Reversing effects of tobacco

I am 56 and have been a heavy smoker since 15. My doctor insists that I give it up and I'm trying to. Is it possible for my body to get rid of the effects of tobacco after so many years of smoking?

Mr. B.U., Ohio

Dear Mr. U.:

This is a question that must be on the minds of many other people.

In fact, many people do not give up smoking readily because they feel that after so many years it is hopeless to expect a reversal of the effects of tobacco.

Many studies have indicated that circulatory diseases and the threat of cancer of the larynx and the lungs may be sharply diminished after tobacco has been given up for three or four years.

Smokers have always noticed how coughs and attacks of bronchitis diminish when tobacco is given up for even one year.

The body has remarkable defenses and recuperative powers. There is no doubt that giving up tobacco will, after a reasonable time, usually allow the body organs to revert to near their normal state.

My wife has endometriosis. She accepts her condition, but lives in terror that this may develop into a cancer. Will you help reassure her?

Mr. J.N., N.C.

Dear Mr. N.:

Endometrial cells line the inner wall of the womb. Sometimes these cells are transplanted into areas where they don't belong. They may find themselves in the ovaries, in the Fallopian tubes, in the wall of the uterus and in the vaginal canal.

Small nests of cells accumulate and are responsible for menstrual disorders and a wide variety of symptoms whose cause is not suspected until the diagnosis of endometriosis is made.

Cancer is not considered, even as a vague possibility, in these cases. Your wife must not live in fear that this will occur.

Modern treatment, with specially selected hormones and with many other medical and surgical approaches, should remove the concern.

Now White House dog keeper's telling all

By HELEN THOMAS

UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The former top dog keeper at the White House has told all, or nearly all, in his new book, "Dog Days at the White House."

The memoirs of Traphes Bryant, an ex-kennel keeper at the White House, will be officially on the stands on Tuesday but orders for the book already are piling up because of Bryant's revelations that President Kennedy went skinny-dipping in the White House swimming pool with nude women friends.

But Bryant, who writes of some of the off-the-record details about family life from Truman to Nixon, had a favorite President, Lyndon B. Johnson. Johnson loved his dogs, especially Yuki who was picked up by Lucy Johnson Nugent in Johnson City, Tex., and became LBJ's favorite dog.

Bryant tells of one "unbelievable scene" when Johnson was having lunch in the west rose garden. Bryant said he walked Yuki to Johnson and let him go. He jumped into LBJ's lap. Then he quoted Johnson as calling to his press secretary George Christian, saying "come here and wipe these damn hairs off my coat."

He said that he and Christian crouched beside Johnson picking dog hairs off his coat with their hands hair by hair.

"It reminded me of a bunch of monkeys grooming themselves," he writes. Bryant said that former President Richard Nixon was called "King Richard" and because of his demands on the White House police, military aides, electricians, telephone operators, secretaries and drivers, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was called "King Kissinger."

Much of the book is devoted to Bryant's diary entries.

In one entry, Bryant told how

White House usher Ray Hare got an order for pillows and cushions for the east garden chairs from Tricia Nixon Cox. He said that Hare told him how he carried the cushions to the garden and "Mr. Cox didn't offer to help him."

"Mr. Hare told me that he lifted up Ed Cox's feet as he put a cushion under them for a hassock."

"I told him I would be damned before I'd do that," wrote Bryant.

He said the White House "had become a castle."

The atmosphere in the Nixon White House was "sick with distrust," according to Bryant.

"The word was 'watch out for this one and that one.' Haldeman was jealous that the press liked Kissinger better than the President, and wrote nicer stories about him. Later he became annoyed that the White House dogs were taking attention away from him."

Bryant's book is gossipy and he described Pat Nixon as "modest and repressed," but he added "she was First Lady and everyone at the White House tried to please her in attempting to live up to her husband's standard of perfection" she occasionally got a little finicky herself.

He said that Nixon "seemed to have a thing about perfection. Whatever he did, he liked to brag about it."

"There were many people the president couldn't stand," Bryant said, and he listed Martha Mitchell among them. He said that the President wanted Martha kept off his plane. "His exact words were, 'keep her out of my hair.'"

He quoted Nixon as saying about his own dog King Timahoe, "if he's the presidential dog he will be treated like a king around here, won't he. Even the President's dog gets the royal treatment."

"Kennedy was a mystery man to me," Bryant wrote. "I never could figure him out — was he fun-loving or ultra-serious."

He said that Kennedy was "more earthy than people realized."

"President Kennedy certainly seemed to enjoy his women."

But he said he liked Kennedy but "didn't set myself up as his judge."

"I figured he had his reasons for whatever he did. Also, I liked Jacqueline Kennedy. I liked her a lot. I don't want to give the impression she was some kind of angel."

He said he remembered one White House party where "Mrs. K" was tipsy on champagne and "flung her shoes off" while dancing in the Grand Hall.

"Jacqueline seemed to flirt with every guy she danced with, —making eyes, throwing her head back lovey dovey. All the men danced with her. I could see that some of the female guests were jealous. I bet their husbands had some explaining to do that night."

Bryant said that Luci knew how to cuss and that Lynda Bird Robb "spit ice at photographers."

Pa. Senate boasts form of 'instant replay' ability

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a review and analysis of issues facing the Pennsylvania Legislature.)

In the Legislature

By DAVID A. MILNE
HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Senate has a form of instant replay that the Oakland Raiders or Gen. George Custer would have loved to get their hands on.

Senate rules permit the lawmakers to reconsider actions they have taken and, in effect, change history after it has happened.

If such a convenient device had been available, Custer and the 7th Cavalry could have replayed the Battle of the Little Big Horn — and won.

And the Oakland Raiders could have replayed the final seconds of their 1972 playoff game with the Pittsburgh Steelers — and had Franco Harris step out of bounds with the deflected pass instead of scoring the winning touchdown.

Such may be the case in the Pennsylvania Senate with last week's Tuesday Night Massacre.

On that day, the senators defeated the nominations of Public Utility Commission Chairman Philip Kalodner, Agriculture Secretary James McHale, Liquor Control Board Chairman Henry Kaplan and Civil Service Commission Chairman Grace Hatch.

The instant replay may come today, and it is possible that when the Senate votes again, all four will receive the 34 votes needed for confirmation.

Shapp administration officials say Kaplan and Hatch stand the best chance of winning confirmation. The nominees were defeated because the Republicans solidly opposed them.

But the governor has a good record of being able to win support from the Senate Republican caucus when he needs it.

The chances that McHale will win confirmation the second time around are less certain.

McHale was defeated by a bipartisan group of rural legislators who oppose many of the programs the secretary instituted during his first five years in office. Shapp will have trouble changing their minds.

There is no question, however, that the outcome of the second vote on Kalodner's nomination as PUC chairman will be the most interesting to watch.

Kalodner was defeated the first time by a 23-26 vote, primarily because Shapp failed to first nominate former Sen. Thomas Lamb, D-Allegheny, to another vacant PUC seat.

Senate Democratic leaders made it clear to the governor that Kalodner would be defeated if Lamb was not nominated. But they could not assure Shapp that Kalodner would be confirmed if Lamb was nominated.

Neither side has budged since then, although another possible deal is in the works.

Before the Senate voted last Tuesday, Shapp said he would give Lamb's nomination to Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline (who is president of the Senate) and promised that Kline would submit the nomination as soon as Kalodner was confirmed.

Senate Majority Leader Thomas Nolan, D-Allegheny, rejected Shapp's offer, calling it an "insult to the Senate."

Late last week, however, Nolan made an offer of his own.

He suggested that Shapp prepare the nomination and give it to Sen. Martin L. Murray, the Senate's president pro tempore, who would hold it until after the vote on Kalodner.

"Governor Shapp trusts Senator Murray implicitly and Senator Murray trusts Governor Shapp implicitly. It's a perfect arrangement," Nolan said.

He said that if Shapp nominates Lamb before the vote on Kalodner is taken, Kalodner will pick up at least 10 more Democratic votes and it should not be too difficult to find one more Republican.

William McLaughlin, Shapp's legislative secretary, said that while the governor has the "utmost trust in Senator Murray," Shapp has not decided whether he will accept Nolan's offer.

"The final decision probably won't be made until Monday morning," McLaughlin said.

The Senate has only two legislative days to reconsider nominations. If no vote is taken today, the Tuesday Night Massacre will be what it almost is — history.

The PRG is busy administering the nation it calls the Republic of South Vietnam from the palaces and ministries it fought so hard to bring down.

South Vietnam's government has taken a firm grip on the country and now is working to formulate the specific policies that will keep it going into the foreseeable future.

One of the first things the PRG wishes to change is its name.

President Huynh Tan Phat told UPI in a brief interview that nationwide elections will be held when security conditions permit, and a national assembly will be seated in Saigon.

The assembly will elect the PRG as the official South Vietnamese government.

"Then we will no longer be provisional and we can cut off that part of our name," Phat said.

In the meantime, the Provisional RG will run South Vietnam.

The PRG grew out of the Hanoi-Saigon war that broke out in South Vietnam following the end of the French Indochina War in 1954.

It first was loosely directed by the Viet Minh, the name given to the guerrillas who had fought the French, but by 1960 the organization needed direction for its three-pronged war on the military, diplomatic and political fronts.

So the National Liberation Front was formed, grouping all the anti-Saigon forces under a single organization. Saigon lawyer Huu Tho was named its chairman.

The NLF outgrew itself over the next nine years as peace talks opened in Paris in 1968 and the Viet Cong representatives arrived for direct participation.

PRG wants to change its name

SAIGON (UPI) — Born in the jungles and raised in the villages, the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam has arrived for good in the big city.

The PRG is busy administering the nation it calls the Republic of South Vietnam from the palaces and ministries it fought so hard to bring down.

South Vietnam's government has taken a firm grip on the country and now is working to formulate the specific policies that will keep it going into the foreseeable future.

One of the first things the PRG wishes to change is its name.

President Huynh Tan Phat told UPI in a brief interview that nationwide elections will be held when security conditions permit, and a national assembly will be seated in Saigon.

The assembly will elect the PRG as the official South Vietnamese government.

"Then we will no longer be provisional and we can cut off that part of our name," Phat said.

In the meantime, the Provisional RG will run South Vietnam.

The PRG grew out of the Hanoi-Saigon war that broke out in South Vietnam following the end of the French Indochina War in 1954.

It first was loosely directed by the Viet Minh, the name given to the guerrillas who had fought the French, but by 1960 the organization needed direction for its three-pronged war on the military, diplomatic and political fronts.

So the National Liberation Front was formed, grouping all the anti-Saigon forces under a single organization. Saigon lawyer Huu Tho was named its chairman.

The NLF outgrew itself over the next nine years as peace talks opened in Paris in 1968 and the Viet Cong representatives arrived for direct participation.

On June 6, 1969, somewhere in the jungles of South Vietnam the PRG was formed, and with a few changes has kept its original composition.

Huynh Tan Phat, who until formation of the PRG had held no high post in the NLF, was selected president. He was a well-known revolutionary figure in the Saigon area, where he was an architect until he was forced to leave Saigon under government harassment.

Tho, who even today is by far the best-known PRG official in South Vietnam, remained as chairman of the NLF, and also was named chairman of the PRG advisory council.

Phat and Tho today are clearly the most important men in the government.

Outside Vietnam, the best known PRG official is Foreign Minister Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, who has traveled extensively since 1970 enlisting support for the cause.

Partly because of her efforts, the PRG has official diplomatic ties with at least 33 nations, including the Scandinavian countries.

The PRG consists of Phat, three vice presidents, seven ministers and 14 deputy ministers.

Bids will be received in the Administration Office, Star Route No. 2, Hawley, Pa. 18428, until 2:00 p.m., Monday, July 28, 1975, at which time they will be publicly opened.
The Board reserves the right to waive any informalities, to reject any or all bids and to award a contract in the best interest of the School District.
Specifications are available at the Administration Office, Star Route No. 2, Hawley, Pa. 18428, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
(Mrs.) Lillian Seelye
Board Secretary
R — July 14, 21.

INVITATION FOR BIDS
The Monroe County Commissioners will receive sealed bids for the repair of a bridge on Hamilton Township Road No. 404 over the McMichael's Creek.
The work in general will include all labor, materials, equipment, and transportation necessary for removal of the existing wood plank deck, commercial blast cleaning of all steel surfaces, application of three coats of paint to all steel surfaces, and installation of a preservative-treated wooden deck as shown on a plan titled "Tombard Road No. 404 over McMichael's Creek, Bridge Deck Replacement, Hamilton Twp., Monroe Co., Pa." dated July 1975, and prepared by Edward C. Hess Associates, Stroudsburg, Pa.
Bids proposals will be received until 10:00 o'clock, A.M. local time on July 28, 1975, at the Office of the Commissioners, Monroe County Courthouse, Stroudsburg, Pa., at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.
Contract Documents, including Technical Specifications, are on file at the office of Edward C. Hess Associates, Inc., 33 North 7th Street, Stroudsburg, Pa.
Copies of the Contract Documents may be obtained by paying $5.00 for each set of documents obtained.
A certified check or bank draft, payable to the order of the Monroe County Commissioners or a satisfactory Bid Bond executed by the bidder and an acceptable surety, in an amount equal to ten per cent (10 per cent) of the total Bid shall be submitted with each bid.
The successful Bidder will be required to furnish and pay for satisfactory performance and payment bond or bonds in the amount of not less than one hundred per cent (100 per cent) of the estimated amount.
An acceptable surety company is any one included in the latest issue of the U.S. Treasury Department Circular 501 listings.
Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum applicable salaries and wages must be paid on this project, and that the Contractor must ensure that employees and applicants for employment are not discriminated against because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin.
The Monroe County Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all Bids or to waive any informalities in the bidding.
Bids may be held by the Monroe County Commissioners for a period not to exceed thirty (30) days from the date of the opening of Bids for the purpose of reviewing the Bids and investigating the qualifications of the Bidders, prior to awarding of the Contract.
By order of the Commissioners of Monroe County:

How To Buy Corn

Fresh corn-on-the-cob is a favorite vegetable. You can buy it year-round in many areas, but it is most plentiful and therefore less expensive during the summer.

Check the quality

- * Kernels that are plump and cover the cob well
- * Yellow corn of bright color
- * White corn that is really white
- * Husks that look fresh, of good green color
- * Silks that are free from decay

Storage Tip

Keep fresh corn-on-the-cob cold and moist and plan to use in 1 or 2 days after purchase for peak of freshness and good flavor.

ADVERTISED ITEM POLICY

Each of these advertised items is required to be readily available for sale at or below the advertised price in each A&P store, except as specifically noted in this ad.

A&P meats come
"best side down"

Now you can see for yourself.

It's always been our policy to pack our meat better side down. So you will never be disappointed when you get home and unwrap it. Now, with our new transparent trays, you can see both sides of the meat before you buy it. And the meat stays neat, because the tray will not soften, break, or leak. We go through a lot to bring you what we think is the best in meat, and this new tray helps keep it that way.

Stately Queen Anne... the 1776 mood for 20th century dining
NOW $588 LESS

THAN MFRS. SUGG. RETAIL PRICES OF GROUP

This is the magnificent dining room you always promised yourself you'd own someday! Get ready for the thrill of a lifetime, because at these sale prices—"someday" is now! Here is Queen Anne styling, crafted of cherry and cherry veneers by the recognized masters of American Traditional design—Pennsylvania House. See the smooth flow of curved legs, molded door panels, intricate dentil moldings... authentic touches which Pennsylvania House executes with unmatched skill. The great "today" features are here, too—finishes resist heat and liquids, the dining table extends, and the buffet is fitted with convenient pull-out trays, as well as a lined-and-divided tray for silver.

Classic 18th century...
superbly in fashion
200 years later
NOW $379 LESS

THAN MFRS. SUGG. RETAIL PRICES OF GROUP

Here is the beautiful look our ancestors lived with and loved! Here is craftsmanship the custom cabinetmakers of colonial days would have applauded! Graceful turned spindles, expertly molded tops, lovely ogee feet... of cherry and cherry veneers... every single detail illustrates why Pennsylvania House is one of the world's greatest names in furniture. Inside, there are luxurious velvet-lined jewelry trays in the dresser, a shirt-divider drawer in the chest-on-chest. Such superior furniture is a valuable investment even at regular prices. At sale prices, it's almost too good to be true!
